Shovelling Soon

Surveyor Snapping

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor III, packing a tiny shovel to scoop moon dust, settled softly on a broad lunar plain Wednesday and began televising pictures of a possible astronaut landing site.

The first photos, sent to earth after the landing in the dry Ocean of Storms, were of the spidery spacecraft itself. They showed it apparently in good condition.

Surveyor III, beaming on tongues of fire, planted its three legs on the moon's surface at 4:04 p.m. PST after a 65-hour, 217,000-mile flight from Cape Kennedy.

It was expected to return hundreds of photos of terrain, then begin soil analyses with a tiny shovel at the end of a spindly arm.

It appears on the way to duplicating the success of Surveyor I, which made the first U.S. soft moon-landing last June and returned thousands of pictures.

The first pictures from Surveyor III had 200 lines — giving about one-third the detail of a home TV set. Scheduled later were shots with 608 lines, yielding home-like quality.

Early shots were indistinct.

A laboratory spokesman said scientists were not particularly concerned, noting initial pictures for Surveyor I were unclear.

Scientists banked on teamwork between Surveyor III's shovel and camera to return the most detailed information yet on the strength and texture of the lunar surface.

Fire Loss $750,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — A three-alarm fire that caused damage estimated at up to $750,000 Wednesday night severely damaged two buildings in the East End industrial area, owned by commercial saw and lamp companies. No one was hurt.

Air War Multiplies

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. air force jets battled swarms of Communist MIG interceptors in 17 separate encounters Wednesday and fought their way through to bomb targets southeast of the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi, the U.S. command reported today.

At least one MIG was shot down. There were no reports of U.S. planes being hit. The raids 37 miles southeast of Hanoi followed heavy strikes against North Vietnam Tuesday in which U.S. pilots flew 145 missions, the second biggest aerial assault of the year.

Taking advantage of a break in the monsoon weather that has blanketed most of North Vietnam since last November, F105 Thunderchief jets knifed deep into Communist territory to raid a key power transmission station 44 miles northeast of the port of Haiphong.

The Communists sent up swarms of Russian-made MIG 17 jets to meet them.

Superior F4C Phantom jets flew cover for the Thunderchief pilots in the strikes against North Vietnam's industrial heartland.

The U.S. command said the pilot of a Thunderchief was credited with shooting one of the MIGs out of the sky. It was the 38th MIG to fall to U.S. guns since the air war began more than two years ago.

AIR CRASH KILLS 124

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — An airliner chartered by a Swiss travel agency crashed and exploded in flames early today during a thunderstorm on this Mediterranean island. Authorities said 124 persons were killed.

Officials said there were six survivors, including a stewardess. All were severely injured.

The plane was returning to Zurich from an economy vacation trip to Asia. It carried 120 Swiss and German tourists and 10 crew members.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Airport officials quoted the pilot of the four-engine Bristol Britannia turbo-prop, a British-built plane, as saying it was struck by lightning as he approached Nicosia airport in darkness.

The pilot was instructed to make an emergency landing at a nearby airstrip, but the plane crashed into the side of a hill and exploded. Heavy rain and hail pelted the disaster area.

FAR-EASTERN TRIP

The plane was owned by Globe Air Co., a Zurich firm, and chartered by Hotelplan, a Swiss travel agency. It was returning to Zurich from a trip to Bangkok, Thailand, via Colombo and Bombay.

The plane had been scheduled to stop in Cairo for refuelling, but it was diverted to Nicosia because of bad weather in the Egyptian capital.

SURVIVORS ARLIFTED

Bits of wreckage and bodies were scattered over a wide area and rescue operations for the survivors were hampered by the rain and hail. The survivors were airlifted by helicopter to a hospital manned by the United Nations peacekeeping force on this troubled island, torn by strife between Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

Civil aviation officials sealed off the area and launched an investigation into the crash. A delegation of Swiss federal air officials and officials of the airline left.

Buttle Dispute Settled — Tentatively

By BILL STAVDAL
Legislative Reporter

The Buttle Lake-Western Mines pollution dispute reached a tentative settlement Wednesday after a three-hour meeting in Victoria.

Three provincial cabinet ministers, mine officials and civic officials from Campbell River agreed to submit the issue to an independent survey and leave the final solution to the Pollution Control Board.

A public hearing will be held by the Pollution Control Board after receipt of a study by Dr. George Langford of Toronto, according to the tentative agreement.

DEADLINE SET

The draft agreement must be ratified by 5 p.m. Friday by directors of Western Mines and by the Campbell River water board.

The issue concerns dumping of mine tailings into Myra Creek and the head of Buttle Lake, from which Campbell River draws its water.

The B.C. Appeal Court, revoked Western Mines' permit to dump tailings on grounds that no public hearing on the matter had been held by the Pollution Control Board.

TEMPORARY BASIS

The mine has had its permits restored on a temporary basis, and until this week was preparing to take its case before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Wednesday's meeting in the legislative building was attended by Resources Minister Williston, Conservation Minister Kiernan and Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell, who is also a member for Comox riding.

From Campbell River came Reeves Kenneth McDonald; Stanley Jenson, chairman of the Campbell River water board;

Sargent's Priority:

Public Order — Then Rights

VANCOUVER (CP) — Retired judge R. A. Sargent, heading a provincial royal commission on invasion of privacy, says society must relinquish some of its rights so citizens may live in well-ordered fashion.

The commissioner was commenting during discussion with a civil rights lawyer at Tuesday's hearing on whether police should be allowed to eavesdrop, electrically or otherwise.

Mr. Sargent suggested the absolute ban on bugging suggested in a brief by the B.C. Civil Liberties Association would hinder police in their fight against crime.

A proposal by the association that the term bugging be extended to cover someone hiding in a room to overhear a conversation would "very materially" help organized crime.

The brief, presented by association president Sidney Simons, urged an absolute ban on the use of eavesdropping devices by private detectives, police and law enforcement bodies, and immediate provincial legislation to protect the right of privacy actionable. It also called for elimination of the use in court of information obtained by such devices.

Church Weighs Common Law

200,000 Blessings?

HAMILTON (CP) — The United Church of Canada is considering special church services to give blessings to some of Canada's 200,000 common law marriages, a Hamilton minister said Tuesday.

Rev. H. N. Hillier, spokesman for a group of Hamilton ministers working toward the change, said a morally-sound common law union is acceptable to God and should be publicly blessed by the church.

The division of congregational life and work of the United Church soon will study the feasibility of services that would provide church blessings on such relationships.

Mr. Hillier, chairman of the committee of evangelism and social service at the Hamilton presbytery, said a formal service, "something like the blessing bestowed on other married couples," could remove the guilt feelings that often surround some morally-good marriages and prevent some people from being alienated from the church.

Common law couples usually are refused the sacraments, including baptism of children, Mr. Hillier said.

The question of blessing common law marriages was defeated last year by a narrow vote in the Hamilton presbytery.

Running Block

Probable, Practical Sites Differ

WHERE NEXT? Word is that city council will get a final recommendation from Ald. Clyde Savage's convention centre committee very soon.

Most probable site choice is near the Crystal Garden while the most practical site choice is said to be near the arena.

The proposed building will probably be a four wall, flat floor structure quite unsuitable for anything but just meetings.

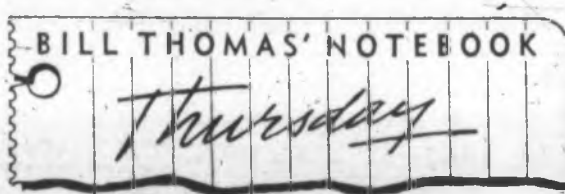

Any hope of getting a multipurpose shed that could house concerts, touring shows or the symphony seems to have gone out the window.

The recommendations have all the hallmarks of the wind usually used to inflate political footballs.

COUP D'ETAT: When gallery directors met last year in Ottawa to decide on plans for centennial year it was decided that if the National Gallery and Expo were to put on Canadian exhibitions then there would be little point in the smaller galleries competing.

Colin Graham listened quietly and then got busy on his own. Many months and 150 letters later the director of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria was able to announce a special show.

From April 25 to May 14 ten Canadians from Kriegerhoff to Harold Towne will be on show. In the show there will be four Lawren Harris works that have never been on public exhibit before, all as a result of Mr. Graham's efforts.

It's hard to believe that all this is the work of a gallery director who is still recovering from his third attack of hepatitis. After a peek around the gallery basement where the show is being assembled it's safe to say it should draw a record crowd.

PLATE DATE: City Progressive Conservatives are set for yet another banquet. This time it's to meet Mike Starr. The Tory leader in the House is coming to launch George Chatterton's nomination meeting in Esquimalt-Saanich so the city club asked him to speak. How many rank and file members will be able to get out to the feed is problematical.

In view of the delight members have been taking in quoting the scriptures lately perhaps 1 Peter 4:3 might well apply.

NOT PREPARED: Saanich police chief W. A. Pearson has really set the Scout and Guide world on its ear. The chief told a meeting of the Welfare League of America Tuesday that the Scouts and Guides refuse to help problem children.

First statement came from Guide Area Commissioner Mrs. H. P. McKeever who said "At no time have we been approached to take a problem child. If we were we would not refuse."

Professional Scout Jack Scrivener fired back at Chief Pearson, "Scouting is a preventive, not a curative organization."

"In Greater Victoria 450 leaders contribute 50,000 hours a year to unpaid work in Scouting. One in two boys in the age group 7 to 11 is engaged in Scouting activity."

Scoutmaster Scrivener tossed the ball back to Chief Pearson saying that members of the RCMP at all levels have been involved and are still involved in Scouting but adds that he does not know of a member of a municipal police force working with Scouts.

Jack Scrivener said he would be happy to start a "Scout program in the Young Offender's Home if anyone will come forward as leader." Back to you, Chief Pearson.

FOLK DEAD: There is a class in the Greater Victoria Music Festival for folk singers, any voice, any selection. You pick it, you sing it. There were just four entries, and of these one dropped out. No wonder the coffee-house talent is so scarce.

BANK ON IT: The way banks work, the poor teller gets to pay — cash — for mistakes. This turns out to include accepting a certified cheque, if the accountant happens to have been holding another cheque that depletes the account, as occurred in a local branch a while ago.

Resides casting doubt on certified cheques, this is exactly the kind of abuse of employees that labor unions quickly wipe out. If only bank underlings weren't so proud of their white collars...

Pill-Block Just Psychological

By JOSEPH MOLENE, MD

Dear Dr. Mole: Please explain why some people can take pills and capsules of all sizes, yet others can't take a simple aspirin.

It must be purely psychological, because I have been examined and there is nothing wrong. What can I do to conquer this problem? — D.R.

In many cases it is, as you say, purely psychological. Such folks can swallow food all right, and have no trouble with morsels considerably larger than a pill.

In other instances, a person may have an overactive reflex, causing a spasm or tightening of the throat muscles when it is a pill instead of food to be swallowed.

Simply knowing that this has happened to other people, and is a nervous quirk, probably will help you conquer it.

Your Good Health

You might even practice with some small bits of candy of equal size and shape.

Some folks fall into the habit of tucking the pill or tablet into a corner of the mouth and keeping it there even while swallowing water. Sounds odd, but it happens. All they really need is to relax and let the pill slide down with the water. For them it's like learning to ride a bike or roller skate. Once they get the hang of it there's nothing to it.

If such easy methods don't work at first, remember that most medications are available in liquid form if needed. It could be the answer for you. And as for aspirin, dissolve or mash it up in a spoonful of milk or water or other liquid and just drink it.

Dear Dr. Mole: When a person is allergic to penicillin and aspirin, can something else be taken, or something taken to counteract the allergy? — MRS. J.L.

There are excellent drugs which can be taken instead of either of those medications, but the choice is best left to a physician who, knowing the extent of the sensitivity, can prescribe the most effective substitute. There is no way to counteract the allergy except to use some other medicine instead.

Truce Zone Plan Promoted by U.S.

Mentality Questioned

TOKYO (UPI) — A U.S. Navy pilot, who has publicly urged the United States to declare war against North Vietnam and press for a clearcut military victory, said Wednesday the navy has convened a medical board to investigate his mental condition.

LT. Cmdr. Laurence Baldauf Jr., 33, of Coronado, Calif., charged that the navy intends to discredit him and his views, recommend that he not be court-martialed for mental reasons and recommend that he be allowed to resign his commission.

"This way the navy will look very paternalistic, avoid the embarrassment of a court-martial and completely discredit me," Baldauf told UPI.

Picture a Trick Say Cuban Exiles

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Former associates of Che Guevara, the vanished international guerrilla leader, says purveyors of Guevara photos published in Havana are those of a double.

They say his eyes, forehead, nose and lips don't jibe with those in the pictures.

"Che didn't even smoke cigars that way," said one of Guevara's closest acquaintances, Raul Diaz. "He smoked them drooping."

Diaz accompanied Fidel and Raul Castro, Guevara, and 78 other revolutionaries from Mexico to Cuba aboard the expeditionary yacht Granma in 1956.

"It definitely isn't Che," he said. "It is a good imitation, but you can't perform plastic surgery on eyes. Che's eyes are slanted, and these are not."

Other exiles agreed.

Why Spend For Arms?

OTTAWA (CP)—Privy Council President Walter Gordon said Wednesday it may not be wise for Canada to keep up with the pace of defence spending increases of Russia and the United States.

He told the National Press Club that Canadians will have to grapple with defence policy if the super-powers continue to build up their offensive and defensive forces.

If they continue to increase staggering defence spending "it may well be the better part of wisdom for a small nation like our own to reconsider its whole position, rather than increasing our defence expenditures proportionately with those of the United States and the Soviet Union."

Mr. Gordon also said that when the time comes to review or renew the North American defence agreement with the United States next year a strenuous discussion of Canada's defence policy can be expected to decide the best defence course for the next decade.

Pakistani Shoes Slow VIP

LAHORE, Pakistan (Reuters) — Sloganselling demonstrators took off their shoes and used them to hit a car carrying former U.S. vice-president Richard Nixon here Wednesday night.

He was booed and jeered by workers from the left-wing National Awami party and the Pakistan Organization for Afro-Asian Solidarity.

The demonstrators chanted slogans including "to hell with U.S. aid" and "Nixon go home."

The former vice-president is on a private fact-finding tour of Southeast Asia.

Maoists Swarm to Peking Rally

HONG KONG (UPI) — Thousands of Mao Tse-tung's supporters swarmed into Peking today to celebrate establishment of a provisional revolutionary committee in the Communist Chinese capital, according to reports reaching Hong Kong.

Peking Radio announced Wednesday that Mao's supporters would hold a rally today "to signify the triumph" over President Liu Shao-chi, Mao's rival in the Chinese power struggle.

The broadcast raised the possibility that Liu had been ousted from office, but this could not be confirmed.

Today's rally was certain to denounce Liu. There was no indication that his status would be altered by the establishment of the revolutionary committee. It replaces the old Peking municipal committee of the Communist party and the municipal council, which was responsible for the administration of the capital.

Liu, once Mao's heir-apparent, has come under relentless attack in the past three weeks, branded as the chief cause of Red China's ills. He became the prime target of Mao's "cultural revolution"—or purge, that has swept the country for the past year.

The Peking radio broadcast said the meeting of Mao's supporters also would mark the establishment of an expanded Peking revolutionary committee, the body created by Mao to press his power struggle.

ONE CANNOT HELP but admire the stubborn efforts made by successive Spanish governments to recapture Gibraltar from Britain. For well over two-and-a-half centuries Spain has used every trick in the book to oust the British—even at one time resorting to actual physical attack by Spanish military forces, an exercise which proved most unrewarding.

On other occasions the Spaniards attempted to enlist Napoleon's aid to accomplish the deed and in more recent years elicited a promise from Hitler to drive the British from their Mediterranean stronghold as a reward for Spanish participation in the war on the side of the Axis powers.

Britain first occupied Gibraltar in 1704 but never took serious possession of it until Spain agreed to cede it under the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713.

In the years since Spain has kept up an almost continuous demand for its return, backed up from time to time by blockades of various descriptions and the application of economic pressures—such as imposing a ban on Spaniards making shopping visits to the colony.

All of which Britain and the Gibraltarians have taken in their stride.

However, apparently the time has come for Spain to get tough again. This week the dictator Franco's Fascist government has announced that it will prohibit foreign aircraft from an area adjacent to Gibraltar and has so informed the International Civil Aviation Organization.

Officially the Franco government maintains that the restriction is being imposed on the grounds of security. However "Arriba" the organ of the Fascist Falangist national movement—the only legal political organization in Spain—spoke Thursday of the mortifying blow which the ban would mean to Gibraltar, and called it a mortal stroke against the colony's tourist industry.

Britain for her part will ignore the ban as it has what it considers a cast-iron case if the matter is debated before the ICAO. Under the ICAO convention of 1944, Spain can certainly impose a ban against flights over Spanish territory, but it cannot unreasonably and unreasonably disrupt communications. That is, it cannot legally prevent aircraft from using Spanish air space in landing and taking off from Gibraltar's air field.

Britain also argues that the Spanish government has put itself out of court by rejecting the British offer to submit legal points connected with the Gibraltar dispute to the World Court.

Obviously unwilling to be dragged into an international hassle, the ICAO has deliberately taken a nebulous stand on the issue, a stand it may have to abandon if both Spain and Britain are determined to stick to the opposing courses they have chosen.

Meanwhile, in the broader context of Spain's territorial ambitions, it might be wondered if Franco has Florida—which it lost first to France and then to the United States as recently as the early part of the 19th century—as his next target.

Robbing Peter...

THE SYSTEM BY WHICH tax exemption or tax relief is used as a means of attracting new business to a district has long been regarded as of doubtful value to the more sophisticated forms of local, provincial or national authority.

It has been rightly pointed out that if tax relief is given one enterprise all its neighbors have to pay higher taxes to cover the subsidy. In some cases, where firms are competitive the practice has been ruinous.

The Carter report on taxation, now under study by the federal government, is strongly opposed to such forms of tax relief. It recommends that mining and other development companies should no longer get a starting-up three year tax free period, and that a dollar earned should be a dollar on which tax has to be paid.

Canada, however, is still full of such hidden reliefs to struggling industry. The Crown's Nest freight rates on grain shipments, subsidies on the movement of coal, the gold mining assistance act and federal aid to designated areas are all examples of government aid for which the taxpayer has to pay.

With mounting opposition from the mining companies, who say exploration work and enterprise will be stifled, and by the oil industry, which claims that no one could tackle projects like the Athabasca tar sands if the Carter recommendations are implemented, the government is going to be on the spot if it hopes to put through the new tax deal on a hokus-bolus basis.

The case for the reformists is not made any easier by the recent decision of the government of the Irish Republic which has ordered a 20-year tax free period for any company starting up a new mining operation in Eire.

Ireland already has liberal mining regulations—four years tax-free and four years more at half-rate—which have brought in many Canadian and other mining companies to the lead-zinc-copper prospects of Western Ireland, and the extension of the exemption will certainly bring in many more.

The price of this concession may seem small to the Irish mines minister, but will the Irish people themselves feel so happy about it when they see in years to come their natural resources being depleted at no profit to themselves or to their government?

The experience of most developed communities is that the answer will be no. Heavily subsidized industry is not generally an industry that is efficient and capable but one that grows sleek and comfortable on the efforts of others.

Unfortunately no one has yet discovered a way to run an economy in which no one is favored to the detriment of his neighbor, nor is it likely to be found, but tax relief is a weapon to be used sparingly, and the Carter commission recommendations are steps towards that end.

Long, Hot Summer at Rideau Hall

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

SO there they were, the Honorable Roland and Norah Michener, the new governor general and his lady, spending their first day in Rideau Hall.

And what a switch just overnight for them.

Monday, all the pomp and circumstance, the protocol and punctilio, the glamor and glory of the swearing-in ceremony in the Senate.

Tuesday, the getting down to the business of preparing for the long, hot and hardest summer old Rideau Hall has seen in 100 years and probably won't see again until 2067.

Nearly 100 kings, reigning queens, pashas, presidents and plain prime ministers, their ladies and entourage to bed, board and bar.

All, of course, at the taxpayer's expense, including the 12 new Cadillac limousines being bought by the industries department to whisk them around in the style to which not all of them yet have become accustomed, despite all your munificent foreign aid efforts.

This will be such high level entertaining as Rideau Hall—where the hospitality routinely lacks for years and probably on with so lushly lavish hand.

On such a mass production basis. Prime Minister Pearson as the nation's No. 2—the new GG, of course, is No. 1—will be sharing in all this winning and dining at the exalted VIP luxury level, and has been heard to wonder out loud about what it might do to his weight and well-being.

He made a brave attempt at a wry little crack about it the other day at a press conference, and if you listened carefully the overtones of address came through over the gladness.

Imagine a whole six months of 12-course—with a wine for nearly every one—coo-oo-oo state dinners, to say nothing of official government luncheons and that endless round of receptions, each walled in on three sides by bars.

The whole bizarre gastronomic bit, fortunately, is not being the imaginative talents of Norah Michener.

If ever the job was created for the woman—or the woman for the job—this surely is the time.

She was such the hostess-with-the-mostest in her thousand and one days and nights here on Parliament Hill as Mr. Speaker Michener's chateaux that she completely dominated the capital's social whirl.

And that takes some dominating, with nearly 60 ambassadors extraordinary and ministers plenipotentiary keeping the old happy-hour merry-go-round spinning with cocktail parties going end-to-end.

Now, putting on a bash in the rambling old Centre Block of Parliament Hill isn't easy. Amid all the cut stone and cold marble, it's something like celebrating in a mausoleum.

When the chauffeured Caddys, Lincolns, Imperials and Silver Ghosts rolled up in whispering silence to the main doors of the House of Commons, there would be two of Madame Speaker's liveried pages, each with a lighted candelabra held high.

And down the shadowed Hall of Fame, darkened for the socially dramatic occasion, the two pages, stalking with mechanical straight-legged stiffness, would light the way for the murmuring, white-tied and pink-wrapped guests to Mr. Speaker's suite and eleg of Room Sixteen, with its frieze of caving crows frozen in black marble.

It reminded him, leered the naughty Rene Levesque from Quebec, of a pair of Robespierres' dandied executioners escorting the powdered and perfumed aristocrat to the guillotine in the days of La Revolution.

Except, of course, all hands were on their way in to pick into just the best bar with bean-and-bun feed this well-fed capital had going.

So watch for the dramatic and the imaginative when the great and not-so-great gather from around the world to be your guests at Rideau Hall.

Washington Calling

New Step in Population Control

By MARQUIS CHILDS

BAILING out a leaky boat with a teaspoon—that is what the effort is like thus far to stem the upsurge of population threatening to overwhelm the earth's resources.

An important change in American policy could, however, mark the beginning of a more meaningful attempt to defuse the time bomb of the population explosion.

While it got little notice, William S. Gaud, administrator of AID told a U.S. congressional committee that as part of AID's family planning program the United States will furnish contraceptives to countries requesting them. Until now AID has furnished only technical and advisory help for population programs, training and research.

The amount spent on this marginal effort has been tiny. Out of the economic program for the current fiscal year of $2.1 billion less than $9,000,000 goes into family planning. Of that amount $5,000,000 is a loan to Turkey to spread information about techniques to carry out family planning.

Cautious as the approach has been, it is a radical departure from the timidity of the past. The United States has taken a peripheral look at a subject hedged in by a multitude of taboos. The break came with President Johnson's declaration in his State of the Union message in 1965 that he would seek new ways to use American knowledge to help deal with the explosion in world population and growing scarcity in world resources. The AID administrator's statement that birth control materials can now be provided is another milestone on a road stretching into a long, troubled and menacing future.

The cautious steps have been taken as the full meaning of death control—the conquest of ancient plagues limiting the growth of peoples—without birth control is evident. The summit meeting in Punta del Este and before that the session of the International Planned Parenthood assembly in Santiago, Chile, pointed up the urgent need for action in Latin America where the population will double before the end of the century. Many of the Americas must import food to maintain a bare level of existence for constantly multiplying peoples. A grim fact conveniently ignored in the past is being faced. This is the rate of illegal Latin America is 2.9, over-all for the less-developed countries is 2.5. The percentage for the developed countries is 1.1, the United States 1.2. In Italy, where the Roman Catholic Church is the official church, the rate is 0.7, only slightly lower than Denmark and the United Kingdom with 0.8.

Statistics for many underdeveloped and newly independent countries must be partly guesswork and they err on the optimistic side. Costa Rica shows a growth rate of 3.8, which far exceeds the growth of the gross national product. This last is true for many countries—the number of mouths to feed outstripping the resources to feed them.

Caution is still the keynote of AID's approach to family planning with stress on the request that must come from the country wanting help. Some advocates of the desperate need to bring food resources into balance with population growth urge that establishment of family planning programs be made a condition of economic help. In his statement to the House foreign affairs committee, Gaud rejected this condition, stating that birth-control aid would be provided "to those countries which have voluntary family planning programs" allowing for individual freedom of choice.

Any effort to persuade or coerce sensitive underdeveloped countries into taking contraceptive material would kick up a political storm. Still under study is how to go about providing such help. A possible model is in the loan to Pakistan of $108,000 in Pakistani currency for a joint enterprise with an American drug company to manufacture the contraceptive pill as well as eight other drug products.

Of the total AID request for the next fiscal year of $2.3 billion, $20,000,000 is budgeted for family planning. Double the current figure, it is a gain, although still a small beginning on an immense problem.

Freeze in Soviet Political Life

By MARK FRANKLAND from London

SO you're going to write about Soviet politics?" a Russian acquaintance said to me in Moscow. "Well, that means you're going to write about Soviet culture."

And he was very largely right. The world of Soviet culture is one of the best reflectors of the various political tendencies that exist in the Soviet Union.

In a country where political debate is almost entirely carried on among the leadership and its close associates in private, literature, the theatre, even painting and music, are an area in which conflicting opinions on near-political matters can be expressed.

In the literary world, for example, there are two prize champions of what might be called the progressive and the conservative trends in Soviet politics. The conservative spokesman is the magazine Oktyabr (October), and champion of the progressives is Novy Mir (New World). Over the past few years a considerable amount of their space has been devoted to elaborate, and sometimes very telling attacks on each other.

Every Soviet citizen who is the slightest bit informed about what is going on in the country known as Oktyabr and Novy Mir, so when both of them were publicly taken to task, they knew what conclusions to draw.

The Soviet leadership had obviously decided that the two rival camps should tone down their arguments. The reason for this was probably the forthcoming celebrations of the Russian Revolution's 50th anniversary. Even the limited amount of controversy found in the two magazines and elsewhere is apparently thought to be too much in a year of great national celebration. In particular, the Soviet writers who are to hold their congress next month have been given a plain signal that they should make it a peaceful affair.

This policy of playing safe in the anniversary year has produced a state of freeze in Soviet political life. Difficult decisions are being put off until 1968. Some Western experts were

Immobile but Noble

Unchanging Poland

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN from London

POLAND is today probably the most conservative country in Europe. It has had the significant change in its government since the post-war settlement. Nor is there any expectation of change. It lives and survives.

Its citizens' preoccupation is with the business of getting a living and a reasonable share of enjoyment. For the rest, Poland stays silent in immobility.

Over the years I have watched a crack in the wall of the arrival lounge at the airport in Warsaw. It runs from roof to floor through a romantic fresco map of Poland. When I first went to Poland years ago, the map was intact. The second time the crack was a great lightning flash of open concrete across the country. Now the crack has been filled with plaster, but the map has not been restored. The crack's course and its origin are as decipherable as ever.

So on the road into the city—still the neat market gardening moments, the rough cobbled road, the Russian war memorial, the tall barrack-like blocks of flats that look both wounded and unfinished. And in Warsaw—the broken pavements, the wide open spaces made uneven by the surviving foundations of destroyed buildings. There is an air, here, not of decay but of suspended disaster.

No serious person could really blame the Poles for this. At the end of the war this city was left virtually uninhabitable. No other capital suffered such disaster and here it was wholly unmerited. The place seems stuck, immovable, half-way through its restoration and the stranger's eye, hungry for evidence of change, gets no satisfaction.

But the city is not horrible. People are decent and warmly dressed. The students even manage to give a glimmer to their youth with modern caps and stylish wind-cheaters. The shops are full of food, but there are too few shops and shopping is not an escape from reality here but an ordeal, particularly if you know precisely what you want. There is a lack of popular entertainment. The big restaurants in the state hotels are full of foreigners, delegations, of officials and of people whose source of income is dubious. The menus read like government documents which they are. The number of grams in each prescribed dish is proclaimed. The service is usually as slow as justice itself.

And none of it, not even the flowers, ever seems to change. Of course this is unfair. But this, for a time, was the most exciting of the "socialist" states. (They prefer this designation to "communist") and "satellite" or "Iron Curtain" is now taken officially as down-right rudeness.) Poland defied the anger of Khrushchev in 1956, a straight eye-ball to eye-ball confrontation with the Russians who insisted on party discipline; the Polish leaders, who included the cardinal, insisted that, if necessary, there should be a Polish road to hell.

Then for a few years, diplomatic initiative poured out of Poland. Their artists, their theatre and movies astonished the Western world. Except perhaps in the cinema, it is all dead now.

Now there is no political gossip. There is an unchanging and unchangeable government. There is little open expression of discontent—unless it be the fact that the overwhelming majority of Poles go to church, perhaps unconsciously to express their dissatisfaction on their knees. Nothing happens now, except the occasional dedication of a new monument to the innumerable dead and the intolerable past.

But the Poles are not defeated. Nor are they in rebellion. On occasion, the intellectuals and the privileged because of their skills can gather with a Western elegance in a picture gallery or a writers' club. How they manage to buy the clothes is an undiscovered miracle.

And all of them who can parade for a wedding or an art exhibition, have behind them a house so small that to the West it seems an insult or a tragedy. It is not the fault of the state, and yet the living-space is rationed exactly as was butter and tea in wartime Britain. A young married couple can expect a small single room, a cupboard kitchen and their own tiny bathroom. Most get far less.

They, being Poles, have made a virtue of their deprivations. They do not complain. If they have been successful, they do not adorn their rooms with the evidence of success. They like to keep them bare as monastic cells, for this is a country under the public equivalent of monastic discipline.

Nor are they dead. Here the talk still flashes out with the sort of cynicism accepted in America about the president, but astonishing in the face of an all-powerful, immovable government. A Polish drinking party is still like sitting down to a drink with a thunder storm.

There is no great change impending in Poland. And yet the Poles have not changed; they are more realistic, longer ready to draw swords and charge tanks, but they are still as Polish as a great jewelled crown set over a dark picture of the Madonna above an altar in the back of an overcrowded parish church. And if Poland was itself the court of a king, a stranger would still leave it, walking backwards in admiration and awe for such a nobility of the spirit.

Everybody Hungry

Cruise passengers eat and drink half their weight on a typical two-week Caribbean cruise, says the National Geographic Society.

For such a voyage from New York, the Greek Line's Olympia takes aboard 300 pounds of venison, 10,000 pounds of steak, 8,000 pounds of filet mignon, 9,000 pounds of beef ribs, 8,000 pounds of turkey, 7,000 pounds of chicken, 1,500 pounds of duck, 2,000 pounds of bacon, 4,000 pounds each of legs of lamb and lamb chops, 6,000 pounds of veal, and 15,000 pounds of other cuts of meat.

Also in the refrigerators are 200 pounds of fresh oyster, 5,000 pounds of fish, 2,000 pounds of shrimp, 200 pounds of live lobsters, plus great quantities of beverages and fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables.

Densovich got published in much the same way) is firmly rejected by his successors.

An excellent example of the present mildness of the Moscow cultural scene is a new play at the Vakhtangov theatre called Warsaw Melody. This has proved immensely popular, partly, it is true, because the heroine is played by a very pretty and much admired actress called Borisova. It is the story of an unhappy love affair between a Russian man and a Polish girl.

Their affair is destroyed by Stalin's post-war law which prohibited the Russians from marrying foreigners. The play's darlings consists in using this cruel (and of course now abandoned) law as the key part of the plot mechanism. But the play itself offers no direct comment on the law's injustice, and indeed ends in a fairly ordinary sentimental fashion.

A few years back, the author might have done more, but part of today's policy of not rocking the boat in that unpleasant memories of Stalinism should not be too vigorously revived.

Only African Nation Muddling Through Alone

Everything About Nigeria Matters

By STANLEY MEISLER
From Lagos, Nigeria

Nigerians may be at civil war soon. But does that matter?

In an era when the news from Africa seems full of endless coups and rebellions and tribal massacres, why fret about another crisis? The answer is that everything about Nigeria matters.

A case for the significance of Nigeria can be made on size, geography and resources. With 56,000,000 people, it is the most populous country in Africa.

The third largest country in size, its two ports of Lagos and Port Harcourt can command the Gulf of Guinea, and its coast is the outlet for the 2,600-mile Niger river that flows through Guinea, Mali and Niger.

Furthermore, it has suddenly become the 10th biggest oil producer in the world. But it is not just these cold facts that make Nigeria matter.

Nigeria matters because of a vibrancy and self-confidence and aggressiveness that have made its people feel more in charge of their own affairs and destiny than any other people in Africa. Nigeria is the most African of all African countries.

You sense this immediately in Lagos, the capital, a crowded frenetic city of color and dance, teeming and jangling. This is not the sleepy, tropical town of many African countries, so quiet in the afternoon that the buzzing of flies can madden you.

Lagos, with its population of 700,000, is a great city, and like all great cities, it is intense, tough, competitive, enervating and dirty. Little things tell the difference between Nigeria and the rest of Africa.

Nigeria, at least in the south, has nothing like the obsequious waiters of East Africa who scrape and bow and bend and say "Yes, Bwana." "Of course, Bwana," again and again.

Telephone operators in Nigeria give you a piece of their mind. Airline ticket agents joke with you. Shop girls make fun of you if you fumble for change. When a white visitor shows up in Nigeria, all this give and take makes him realize quickly that the country belongs to them, not him.

This is also driven home by the proud, striking, flowing national clothing worn so much by Nigerians. Few Nigerians ever look like awkward teen-agers in ill fitting suits — the fate of many Africans elsewhere as they envelop themselves in western clothes.

Language also drives mood home. Nigerians speak in an English that has a bit all its own. It's not bad English; it's Nigerian English, and it differs from British English just the way American English does.

Except in the north, government ministries are free of foreign influence. Unlike the French-speaking African countries, Nigeria does not have a host of European advisers in every ministry, setting policy and planning budgets. Unlike Kenya, Nigeria does not have a white man in almost every office to see that the paper work gets done.

There are pockets of white control in Nigeria, especially in some commercial enterprises, but for the most part, Nigerians run their country themselves.

When you show up at the University of Ibadan, you don't call on visiting white lecturers the way you do in almost every other university in Africa. Instead, you sit in the faculty club and discuss Perhaps more important in determining just where Western European policy is headed, the ministers link their position with demands that the Common Market be given greater power to dictate borrowing terms and that needy borrowers show greater self-discipline before they get monetary fund loans.

But democratic government which takes such steps fear voters may be too ready to sweep them out of office. The stunning blow against the Labor party in Britain's recent municipal election is a vivid reminder of how unpopular prolonged belt-tightening can be.

Both Britain and the United States are experiencing difficulties in overcoming international payment deficits — there is a gap in the amount of their currencies going out of the country and the amount returning. Many countries, particularly those in Europe, demand gold for their surplus American dollars and the American gold stockpile continues to shrink.

There has been much speculation that if this trend continues, the U.S. might stop supporting the official gold market and stop buying or selling gold. British officials are inclined to believe the U.S. would not take such drastic steps. Yet they are convinced that drastic action may become necessary.

International Monetary Fund governors meet at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, next September. Britain had hoped action might be taken then on a new reserve currency, that would take the pressure off sterling and dollars in world trade. That hope now seems to have gone out the window without Common Market support, the idea hasn't much chance of wide acceptance.

That hope now seems to have gone out the window without Common Market support, the idea hasn't much chance of wide acceptance.

Where do Americans stand now, compared to that day in 1917 when they first went to war to "make the world safe for democracy"? If the Kaiser had won, would it have been any worse? Indeed, it was because the Kaiser lost that Nazism was able to take root in Germany. Does war do anything but perpetuate itself, in more hideous form, a generation later?

One war, and one generation, after fighting the Kaiser, we fought Hitler's Germany. We were appalled when the Nazis bombed Coventry and Rotterdam, undefended cities, killing tens of thousands of civilians — men, women, and children.

The Nazis said they were doing it as an act of humanity — for it would bring the war to an end sooner. We rejected this horrible hypocrisy, and condemned the Nazis as bestial barbarians.

Then, not much later, we bombed the undefended cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, killing tens of thousands of civilians — men, women, and children. We said we were doing it as an act of humanity — for it would bring the war against Japan to an end sooner. And we did not, and do not, call ourselves bestial barbarians.

Now, one war and one generation later, who is burning peasants in Vietnam, destroying villages and devastating the countryside — "because our enemy is forcing us to behave in this frightful fashion, we have no choice; we must fight fire with fire."

CURRENT EVENTS

By M. D. LIPTON

Like the turning of the great wheel of time, the war in Viet Nam shows no signs of stopping.

What is involved in this confrontation. Who is winning? How will it end? The answers are far from clear. For countless Vietnamese this bloody struggle in the jungle is a way of life. Ho Chi Minh regards the fight as a civil war between opposing elements in the South.

To the generals in the Pentagon and the chief executive in the White House, the raging battle in Southeast Asia is a crucial stopgap in the spread of Communism. If we withdraw, they say, the entire Far East will capitulate like a series of dominoes.

United Nations Secretary General U Thant and some neutral observers do not feel that Vietnam is vital to U.S. security. Whether they are correct or not, the United States is certainly not prepared to lose this test of arms over a 128,000 square mile rice paddy.

And so, this drawn out ordeal continues to claim its dreadful toll — human suffering, misery and death. For every hour that the canons roar, the rifles blaze and the bombs fall, the American people pay an additional $1,000,000.

South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky has called for an invasion of the North. Presently, a $100,000,000 drive is being conducted to defoliate the jungle sanctuaries of the Viet Cong, despite the warnings that this use of mild chemicals might open the door to more effective killers.

Destroy the harbor of Haiphong, the fertilizer plants, the whole industrial complex of North Viet Nam, says Gen. A. Eaker, former deputy commanding general. "If Mao decides to sit in this poker game, we can take his chips too."

Both sides are caught up in the distrust of the other. Washington has offered to stop bombing and go to the negotiation table if Hanoi first pledges to call off its agents below the 17th parallel.

Several times, however, Hanoi has refused, demanding that the air raids must cease before it will consider bargaining for peace. The problem is to overcome this deadlock of suspicion. The longer the war goes on, the greater the sacrifice of American lives, the stronger the pressure to bring the conflict to a military conclusion. Various schemes have been proposed to realize this objective.

Some U.S. military minds believe that when the price of war becomes too high, the Communists will surrender. "Bomb them into the stone age."

Performances At Festival Outstanding

By BERT BINNY

There were several outstanding events and performances at the Music Festival Wednesday night.

Pianist Linn Hendry established what amounted to a corner in open classes and her achievements in this respect may easily constitute a record for the history of the Festival.

ONE TO GO

There are seven open classes; she has won six; there is one to go this afternoon.

She accounted for three Wednesday evening: the modern, the general solo and the concert group. Previously she has tucked away among her triumphs the concerto, the Bach class and the Chopin.

Her highest score has been a 91 obtained for an item in her concert group. But she also had a 90 in this class and another 90 for Chopin. Overall she has averaged almost exactly 88 points per class.

HIGH SPOT

There were operatic finals, too, Wednesday night, won, as in the preliminary contest, by Carla Levenson.

A high spot in the evening vocal session was a performance in the family ensemble class by youthful Susan, Pat, Ann and Bill Patterson. This earned them not only 91 points and a glowing adjudication but also the enthusiastic appreciation of the audience.

"I have never heard anything like this — anywhere!" said adjudicator Cecil Cope.

NO BETTER CHOIR

A rousing performance by the well-known and popular Arity Singers of Victoria earned them 90 points in the mixed choir class and the adjudicator remarked that he had encountered no better choir anywhere in Canada.

Five open contests were decided in the speech arts division.

This, however, took time. While the vocal and piano sessions ended before 9:30, speech arts was still going along an hour later.

Barkerville Touch Of Sag In Zip

Best of Barkerville played the McPherson Playhouse to a packed house Wednesday and got the expected applause but there are a few cracks showing in this plaster of fun and song.

Those who have seen the show a good many times detect a slackening of pace and a tendency for the material to drag slightly. Possibly this is to be expected from a cast that has been on tour so long and which has played across the province.

STILL CONVULSING

The gags are still vintage music hall and Fran Dowie and his cast still convulse every audience but the act has just a touch of sag.

Sid Williams has best weathered the winds of applause and manages to keep fresh and vital but the pace is peeling from the facade for some of the other members of the cast.

The cast needs a rest. If it is to regain the vitality that has been characteristic of this show for so long.

WORTH VISIT

The program, like the arms of the Great Barkow, grows longer and longer.

Ruthless editing to trim the program back to two rather than the present three hours might have the desired effect. This is still great entertainment and well worth a visit. There are a few tickets left for the Saturday show at Victoria High School and they are available at the Centennial Office in Centennial Square.

Beauties Win Vancouver

VANCOUVER (UPI) — Vancouver got a brief look at Hollywood Wednesday and liked what it saw.

Cocktail glasses at the ready and contact lenses polished, the press stormed aboard the luxury liner Canberra to mingle with the movie stars.

They crammed into a wood-paneled reception room on the promenade deck, called for some reason, the Crystal Room — a very, very small room, but all the better to corner and capture with conversation such tasty dishes as Swedish pastry finger Stevens and Texas trout Sue Ane Langdon.

Glasses tinkled as white-coated stewards kept the liquid flowing, cameras clicked and flashbulbs popped at the beautiful Misses Stevens and Langdon. Ship's officers circulated to keep the hospitality flowing but found themselves anchored by some invisible chain to Misses Stevens and Langdon. And men over the age of 21 and able to see past the end of their noses stared at Misses Stevens and Langdon.

Mr. Simpson-Baillie, former president of the folk singers association in Victoria, has played at the Bunkhouse in Vancouver, and in coffee houses at San Francisco and Minneapolis.

He was house act at Gipper's for several months last year. Mr. Wright works in several musical spheres.

He is lead singer with the rock and roll group Blues by Five, singer and comedian Five. He has also worked as a folk and rhythm and blues artist, and is a top harmonica player.

Students Quit In Mod Fuss

QUESNEL (CP) — Students at the Cariboo high school walked out of classes to protest regulations on the wearing of mod-style clothing. A meeting with the principal resulted in new rules allowing long hair if it is kept neat and mini skirts for girls if the tops of their nylons do not show.

Victoria competitors have been awarded three bursaries in dancing events at the Upper Island Musical Festival, which concludes this week at Nanaimo.

One of them, the folk dance group from the Wynne Shaw studio, has accepted an invitation to return for the honor performance Saturday night at Nanaimo Senior High school, and present again the Mexican Bridesmaids' dance.

This group won a bursary presented by the Nanaimo Dance Association.

Other winners were Maureen Lawson, the Saxon Shoes Ltd. bursary for the most outstanding solo ballet performance, and Colleen De Corte, a special bursary, donated anonymously, for the non-winning ballet soloist showing outstanding promise.

Alleged Extortion

Labor Council Endorses Probe-Launching Move

The action of a Victoria labor union local against an alleged extortion operation in a South Vancouver Island mill was heartily endorsed by the Victoria Labor Council Wednesday.

On an information laid by the Victoria IWA local president, Murray Drew, the RCMP is conducting a full scale investigation.

In other action, the council:

- Listened to a presentation by Bert Ogden of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, outlining the "hot fish" hassle in Prince Rupert in which 250,000 pounds of fish rotted at the docks. He said the matter hinged on the fishermen seeking written agreement on trawler shares — the same agreement that had been honored by tacit agreement for 20 years;

- Endorsed the Victoria Chamber of Commerce's proposal that there be one truly United Appeal. The council also voted to re-state labor's position on social service and welfare organizations being financed by the government, rather than by donation;

- Voted to request establishment of a federal government bookstore in Victoria, selling government publications, similar to the store now operating in Vancouver;

- Endorsed International Pulp, Sulphite Workers Local 695 in its bid to have contract terms upheld at Harmac;

- Accepted B.C. Opposition Leader Robert Strachan's offer to speak to the council May 3. The council had asked Mr. Strachan to come up with a date when he would be available;

- Reiterated an earlier motion by the council favoring publicly-owned ambulance service. The motion was prompted by a request from the Oak Bay and Victoria firefighters who were "disturbed" over reports Victoria plans to have emergency ambulance service handled privately.

Eastern Region

Key Installations Seized in Nigeria

ENUGU, Nigeria (Reuters)—Eastern Nigeria took over all key federal installations in the region under an edict issued Tuesday night. It was announced Wednesday.

The edict carried the signature of the Eastern governor, Lt.-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu, who has sought more regional autonomy from the federal supreme military council.

Installations affected include ports, railroads, posts and telecommunications, and various statutory corporations and institutions covering broadcasting, coal, shipping and marketing. Observers here believe it could increase Eastern isolation and provoke the federal government into trying to close Eastern ports, including the vital port of Harcourt, and severing telecommunication links.

PARIS (Reuters)—The French navy Wednesday carried out its first test firing of a sea-to-land intercontinental ballistic missile which its nuclear-powered submarine force will carry in the 1970s. The firing, from a submarine submerged in the Mediterranean, was successful.

Europe Application Hinted Soon

U.K. Trying Again?

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson was reported to have tossed a broad hint to Canadian ministers Wednesday that he intends to apply shortly for British entry into the European Common Market.

While the Canadians, attending a two-day Anglo-Canadian economic conference declined to be specific on this point, an informant said there was certain secret information Wilson provided which indicated his intervention to pursue Common Market membership.

A British official said later Wilson likely will announce his intention within the next three or four weeks, soon after the outcome of the world tariff bargaining in Geneva is known.

The attitude of the Canadian government is not to attempt to dissuade Wilson from his European course but to emphasize how British entry might affect the British market for vital Canadian exports. A Canadian official said this emphasis was spelled out in detail during the first day of the ministerial talks.

Both External Affairs Minister Martin, leading the six-member Canadian cabinet team, and Douglas Jay, president of the British board of trade, said in interviews they felt the talks were going well. Wilson presided at Wednesday's opening round at 10 Downing Street where, instead of economics, the main emphasis was on Vietnam and the approaches that could be made to seek a peaceful solution to the conflict. Martin has made a four-point approach, which Hanoi has called a U.S. imperialist trick and he may explore the situation again with United Nations Secretary-General U. Thant.

MEET THANT
Martin will try to confer with Thant today on the secretary-general's London stopover on his way back to New York from an Asian trip or during a meeting in New York April 21.

"We must never close the door on these matters," Martin told a reporter.

Aside from Vietnam, the Anglo-Canadian conferees, who included a number of British ministers, touched briefly on NATO and British-West German talks on financing which would allow the bulk of British and American troops to remain in West Germany.

NUCLEAR BAN
They also talked briefly on the stalled treaty to ban the spread of nuclear weapons and then moved into the Common Market where Wilson spelled out his position.

Fred Mulley, a junior foreign minister who likely will negotiate the British Common Market bid, took up the European issue again during a three-hour afternoon session at Marlborough House, site of the Commonwealth headquarters.

Canadian Finance Minister Sharp, in the meantime, had a working lunch with James Callaghan, chancellor of the ex-

B.C. Centennial

Trophies Lined Up For Chess Tourney

If trophies are matched by chess players, the B.C. Centennial Open Chess Championship should be the best Victoria has ever had.

The tournament will be held at the University of Victoria May 20 and 21.

So far tournament organizers have come up with regular trophies for winners in four different categories, plus special trophies for the top Victoria player and the best junior player.

That's six trophies to start with.

MAY BE MORE

"And there may be more," promised August Strodryk, president of Victoria Chess Club.

He said the Greater Victoria Centennial Society has donated a perpetual trophy for the leading city player in the championship.

But the B.C. Centennial Committee did even more, he said, contributing about $300 to the cost of running the tournament.

PLAYERS EXPECTED

The tournament will be the best ever held here, the organizers feel, if all leading players from the Pacific Northwest show up.

Expected from Vancouver are former Canadian junior champion Duncan Suttles and this year's B.C. co-champions Elod Macklary and Colin Aykroyd.

Port Alberni will contribute Joe Kalkenecker; Nanaimo, Fred Schulz; and Victoria, Alan Lane, Ed Seedhouse, Ollie Sarakannas and Ray Kerr.

AT UNIVERSITY

A strong contingent is expected from Oregon and Washington, with Seattle chess master Jim McCormick leading the way.

The competition will be held in Building H, near campus service building at UVic.

Advance registration should be directed to Alan Lane, 1054 Inverness Road, Victoria, telephone 382-2807.

Rescue, Rescue, Rescue

Rescue resources were pressed into service Wednesday as one fishboat was beached, a second was holed but repaired and a rudder-troubled tug all radioed for help.

The navy's older CNAV Dundurn brought fisherman John Vickers off the beach at Hamlet Inlet on Picher Island after he beached his holed, sinking fishboat. He was taken to Prince Rupert.

The Coast Guard cutter Ready put pumps aboard the fishboat Paradise after she radioed she had sprung a leak on running into Thresher Rock outside Nanaimo. Repairs were made at sea and the vessel proceeded to Beltingham.

The Coast Guard's Bamfield lifeboat went to the aid of the Vancouver tug Charlotte Strait after she reported rudder trouble. The lifeboat helped the tug to steer into Ucluelet Harbor to put the trouble right.

Bahamas Verdict

NASSAU, Bahamas (CP)—

Gerald Robinson, Canadian chiropractor charged with manslaughter in the drug death of his wife last October, was acquitted Wednesday by an 8-to-4 Supreme Court jury verdict.

The jury returned after three hours deliberation to say it attached no guilt or blame to Robinson, former Montreal resident, in the death of his wife. He said his wife had twice attempted suicide, once by slashing her wrists and once by thrusting her head in a gas oven, and he believed she took her own life through an overdose of sleeping pills.

Mrs. Robinson was a singer known as Colette Bonheur on French-language broadcasts of the CBC.

Most Sad, Reds Cold

LONDON (UPI) — The high and mighty of the free world joined West German Wednesday in mourning the death of Konrad Adenauer.

Even in death, however, the Communists had harsh words for the former chancellor. The official East German ADN news agency said his "was a life directed against the interests of the German nation, for maintenance of the old system that is doomed, of cramped resistance against all that is new."

The Soviet news agency Tass carried a brief report on Adenauer's death without comment.

In Washington, President Johnson expressed his personal sorrow and that of the American people.

Queen Elizabeth sent a personal message of condolence to Bonn. There also were cables of tribute from French President de Gaulle, British Prime Minister Wilson and other leaders around the world.

De Gaulle, who numbered Adenauer among his personal friends, said news of his death "causes me profound sorrow. In the name of my country, I bow with respect before one of the great statesmen of these times."

Long, hard-fought life ends at 91

West Germans Mourn

Der Alte Dies Peacefully

BONN (UPI) — Former chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who pulled West Germany out of the ruins and degradation of war to a place of honor and power among free nations, died peacefully Wednesday at 91.

President Johnson was among the first of the world leaders to announce he will head his nation's delegation to the state funeral Tuesday for the statesman who defied both the Nazis and Communists for more than three decades.

SUDDEN DECLINE

Adenauer, whose career really began as an old man, came down with gripe and bronchitis two weeks ago and the infirmity of age sapped his strength. He fought hard, once gaining strength until a sudden decline when his lungs, heart and circulatory system simply gave out.

The death of Der Alte (The Old One), as Adenauer was popularly known, plunged this nation into deep mourning. Church bells tolled the death knell, offices and shops were closed, flags were lowered and President Luebkke ordered full honors.

Adenauer, who held power longer than any German chancellor since Otto Bismarck in the 19th century, died at his hillside home in Rhondorf, a Rhine River Valley village about four miles from Bonn.

AT BEDSIDE

His seven children were at his bedside with many of his 23 grandchildren.

Adenauer came out of Nazi-enforced retirement at the age of 73 to become chancellor of war-torn West Germany in 1949 and remained in the post until 1963.

Adenauer died in the upstairs bedroom of the three-story house he bought in Rhondorf in 1937 after the Nazis forced him to leave Cologne where the Adenauer family had lived since the Middle Ages.

BESIDE WIVES

He will be buried in the family plot outside the village, beside his two wives and his mother and father.

As the bells in Rhondorf began to toll, villagers dropped work and closed shops to converge at the Adenauer home at Zennigsweg 84.

WILSON AT RITES

Many wept as they stared at the house, at Adenauer's carefully tended rose garden and at the six-sided tea pavilion which he designed and where he dictated his memoirs.

Prime Minister Wilson will represent Britain at the funeral, President de Gaulle of France.

who buried the hatred with Hitler's Third Reich. Adenauer had repeatedly declared all his policies including reconciliation with France and rearmament within the western Atlantic alliance, were directed toward reunification of Germany.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE!

Super Father Medical Miracle

By EDWIN ROTH
Special to the Colonist

BONN — He was in his 92nd year, but the Germans under their half-masted flags still can't believe he is gone.

For three years after Konrad Adenauer was pushed from the chancellorship by his own conservative Christian Democratic Union party because — incredibly! — he was almost 88, he continued to fill the newspapers, magazines, TV screens, minds and hearts of the West Germans a super father figure.

His house in little Rhondorf overlooking the Rhine near Bonn was almost a national shrine.

No Churchill

Sir Winston Churchill, who lived one year less than Adenauer, sadly lost his mental and physical powers several years before his death. But Adenauer was a unique medical miracle. Until his brief fatal illness he immensely enjoyed life with all the vigor, energy and mental alertness of a dynamic 60-year-old.

To understand this medical miracle, remember Adenauer was too old to fight in the First World War.

In 1917, at 41, he became lord mayor of Cologne. When John F. Kennedy visited Cologne, Adenauer showed him the ruin of the Gothic city hall destroyed in an air raid, and said: "I entered that as lord mayor in 1917." Kennedy replied: "That's the year when I was born."

At Any Price

Adenauer would have died as president had he not tried to prevent at any price the assumption of the chancellorship by his vice-chancellor and economics minister, Ludwig Erhard.

In 1950, when he was 83, Adenauer was offered the presidency by his party. The idea was supported by all other West German parties, who wanted their second head of state to have the same personal prestige as first President Theodor Heuss, whose re-election was constitutionally impossible.

Adenauer accepted, but sensationally withdrew his acceptance because the CDU insisted on making Erhard chancellor.

Weak, Soft

"I know Erhard too well," he cried again and again. "He is not a statesman. He is not even a good politician. He is weak, soft, indecisive and mediocre. As chancellor, he would be disastrous."

Adenauer remained Chancellor for another four years, until his enforced resignation. Despite his bitter public opposition, Erhard became chancellor. Correctly, the party managers believed, fat, cigar-smoking Erhard the best vote-winner for the 1965 national election.

Six Meetings

In that fierce battle, Adenauer campaigned for Erhard — proving that in his 90th year he could travel hundreds of miles, speaking vigorously and amusingly at six large meetings on the same day. For several campaign weeks, Adenauer gave an incredible performance.

On Jan. 5, 1966, when Adenauer celebrated his 90th birthday in Bonn, I stood beside him while Erhard gave him a precious medieval loon.

Bitterly, Erhard remarked: "You yourself have said that when two people always agree with each other, they are useless. If this applies to us, we are both very useful."

Adenauer replied: "Herr Bundeskanzler, I wish you every success from all my heart — believe me, I mean it."

Adenauer's 90th birthday celebrations, which he enjoyed tremendously with immense vigor, would have exhausted most men 30 years younger.

Combined with his miraculous physical and mental energy was a joyous sense of humor.

At one of his news conferences I attended some years ago, a pompous German reporter asked solemnly in the third person: "Could the Herr Bundeskanzler tell us exactly what he discussed with the American Secretary of State this afternoon?"

Adenauer rose, looked at the questioner, and replied only: "Ja, das koennte ich" — "Yes, I could."

On his last visit to London as chancellor, Adenauer arrived just before midnight at a big, formal government reception in his honor — after a full day of strenuous diplomatic talks and a state banquet given by Queen Elizabeth.

He was cornered by the political editor of a large British conservative, violently anti-German and anti-NATO newspaper, who asked me to translate a question into German.

Because I can translate simultaneously in English and German, and Adenauer liked my simultaneous translation, what began as a simple question turned into a hard, fast, searching and aggressive cross-examination.

Adenauer's press secretary watched horrified and tried to rescue him.

"Ach — let's carry this on — it's very interesting," said Adenauer laughing.

He was charming, witty, diplomatic — and superbly evasive. His political mind was completely in control. This midnight cross-examination lasted half an hour — during which Adenauer could have stopped it at any moment.

But Why?

When it ended, I remarked in German: "Congratulations on the way you handled this after your 18-hour day." "Everybody standing around agreed."

Laughing, Adenauer replied: "But why? I didn't say anything at all!"

He was then 88. Near the end of his 91st year, Adenauer won his last victory. Ludwig Erhard had finally proved himself to be as weak and mediocre as Adenauer had always said. Erhard's administration collapsed.

The Social Democratic party's parliamentary leader Fritz Erler wrote from his sickbed: "How I wish I could be in Bonn to watch the spectacle of Adenauer preparing to succeed Erhard!"

Only because Adenauer was almost 91, Erhard was succeeded not by Adenauer, but by Kurt Georg Kiesinger — whom Adenauer supported. Triumphant, Adenauer could say: "I told you so."

Tito's Thorn Imprisoned

BELGRADE (UPI) — Author Mihajlo Mihajlov, a thorn in President Tito's side, was sentenced Wednesday to 4½ years in prison and banned from all public activity for four years.

'Only Russia' Capable Of U.S. Job

MOSCOW (AP) — A Russian engineer said Wednesday that only the Soviet Union has the necessary experience to build the giant hydroelectric dam needed by the Grand Coulee Dam in the United States.

The Soviets put in a bid to supply the 600,000-kilowatt turbines. The bid was seen as a test of official American statements expressing interest in trade with Communist East Europe.

Vladimir Goldin, head of the design bureau of the Leningrad turbine plant that would do the job for Grand Coulee, told the newspaper Literary Gazette: "The fact is that hydroelectricity of such capacity are produced only in the Soviet Union."

He said the turbines his plant produced for Krasnoyarsk station in Siberia could be used for Grand Coulee.

thereafter for his attacks on Yugoslav Communism.

A Belgrade district court made the sentence concurrent with Mihajlov's entering prison 10 months ago, when he was arrested and subsequently given a one-year sentence for defaming Tito's Yugoslav Communist system in articles published abroad.

Defence attorney Veljko Kovacevic said he would appeal the sentence. Court sources said the four-year ban on Mihajlov's public activity after completing his jail sentence means he will not be allowed to publish his writings or engage in politics during the period.

DENIES CHARGE

The 32-year-old author, who relentlessly attacked the Yugoslav Communist party throughout his trial, was convicted of spreading hostile propaganda against Yugoslavia. He could have received a maximum penalty of 12 years.

Mihajlov denied the charges and accused the ruling Communist party of stifling freedom of expression in Yugoslavia.

Force

Fairs Minister Martin said Canada is prepared to participate in any peacekeeping force which might be sent to Vietnam.

Mr. Martin in a statement to the Commons external affairs committee proposed a progressive, four-stage plan leading to a total ceasefire in Vietnam.

HELP ESTABLISHED

The first step would include a disengagement in the so-called demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam.

In Washington, it was reported that the United States has offered to help establish with the Communists a 26-mile-wide truce strip.

This would extend the present limits of the six-mile-wide demilitarized zone at the 17th parallel.

Ormond Dier, new senior Canadian representative on the commission, is scheduled to make his first visit to Hanoi late this week—the exact day was not disclosed here.

EDITORIAL REJECTION

He is expected to discuss with North Vietnamese authorities Mr. Martin's ceasefire plan.

Though a Communist newspaper editorial in Hanoi has rejected Mr. Martin's proposal, the minister said Monday in an interview it is his impression that North Vietnam had not yet studied the full text of his statement.

No details of the contingency plans were made known officially.

BATTALION GROUP

However, they were said unofficially to involve some 1,000 troops—a battalion group—and air and sea transportation and housing accommodation for them.

Canadians presumably would be only part of any Vietnam peacekeeping force.

If such a force were established under the International Control Commission, India and Poland presumably also would contribute.

If it were established under the UN, many nations—and possibly not Canada at all—would be expected to send military personnel.

GUARDS REGIMENT

Prime Minister Pearson has suggested on a couple of occasions that any peacekeeping force might not include any white troops, comprising instead Asians and Africans.

If Canada took part in a Vietnam peace force, the unit involved likely would be the 1st Battalion, Canadian Guards Regiment, stationed at Picton, Ont. This unit has been designated as Canada's stand-by force for possible peacekeeping duty anywhere in the world.

and water board members Alex Rutherford and W. W. Baikie.

Spokesmen for the mine were Hal Wright, president of Western Mines, and Charles Campbell, general manager.

Their joint tentative agreement proposes:

- Issuance of temporary permits to Western Mines under the Pollution Act.

- A study by Dr. Langford, former professor of engineering at the University of Toronto and a member of the International Joint Commission on Pollution, now surveying pollution of the Great Lakes.

- A public hearing held by the Pollution Control Board after Dr. Langford submits his report.

- A binding decision by the Pollution Control Board, subject to final appeal to the provincial cabinet.

The cost of Dr. Langford's study will be paid for equally by the Pollution Control Board, Western Mines and the Campbell River water board.

Mr. Kiernan commented after the meeting:

"I think part of the problem may have been due to ineffective communication."

PRIVATE PARTIES

Reeve McDonald said the agreement would not prevent private parties from taking court action to halt dumping of mine waste in the lake. He added he didn't expect any with a public hearing in the offing.

Spokesmen for the Campbell River delegation said the Langford study would examine the possibility of an alternative dumping site and the long-term effect on marine life of the dumping.

PRESTON, Ont. (CP)—Hidden Spring Christian Rehabilitation Centre, which offers counselling and therapy services for emotional and alcoholic problems, will close at the end of April, the board of directors said.

The private centre, which has been operating for 10 years in this area near Brantford, is closing because of a lack of clients and a decrease in voluntary contributions needed to support its work, the directors said.

Senate Hears of Trips

LSD Destination Asylum, Grave

OTTAWA (Special) — An LSD trip is most likely a ticket to an asylum, a prison or the grave, Senator David Crombie told a hushed Upper House Wednesday.

He was one of several senators who brought the horrors of LSD to the floor of the plush Senate chamber where debate is continuing on a government bill to crack down on the drug.

Sen. Joseph Sullivan (PC-North York) a surgeon of international stature, said the drug should be considered a narcotic and the penalties for its possession or trafficking should be even stiffer than the government bill proposes.

The bill provides a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison for conviction of trafficking or possession for trafficking of the drug.

But Sen. Sullivan said that from a medical point of view a narcotic is a drug which induces a state of stupor. He claimed many people who take LSD enter a state of stupor so the drug should be classed as a narcotic.

He added that people who have taken the drug often have difficulty stopping.

He described in frightening detail the effects of the drug on some users.

"In the first 30 minutes to two hours there is visual distortion... color vividness... Objects move, the pupils dilate, there can be perspiration and nausea..."

He described the second period from the second to fifth hour — in which an individual may experience acute depression, early memories, laughing, or acts of dangerous violence or a "sense of communion with God."

AFTER EFFECTS

He said a person returns to normal between the 5th and 10th hours with a recollection of the trip.

Sen. Sullivan warned the drug can cause perceptual distortion up to a year after it is taken, prolonged psychosis or panic and violent reactions.

Sen. Sullivan said there has been definite evidence of permanent emotional disarrangement and brain damage and disability among users of the drug. He said users can injure themselves because they feel invulnerable.

"Anyone that will peddle LSD will peddle heroin, morphine or cocaine. The penalty imposed cannot be too severe," Sen. Sullivan concluded.

Doctor Treating 25 Young People

VANCOUVER (CP) — An American doctor said Wednesday he is treating 25 young people suffering from after-effects of LSD.

Dr. Allen Dahl of Edmonds, Wash., said his patients include a 17-year-old youth who suffers convulsions daily, a 17-year-old girl who has lacked bladder control since she took LSD two years ago and several others with eye trouble.

"The tragic thing is that these kids are getting literally destroyed," said the general practitioner in a telephone interview from his home at Edmonds, a community 15 miles north of Seattle.

'CHEAPER UP THERE'

He said the hallucinatory drug, the subject of federal and provincial legislation in Canada, is being sold for $3.50 to $5 a dose in Edmonds, though some American youngsters come to Vancouver to buy it because "they tell me it's cheaper up there."

Dr. Dahl said he could not prove conclusively that the physical ailments result from having taken LSD, but there is "presumptive evidence" that it is the cause.

In the case of the girl with bladder trouble, he said, her problem began four days after she took a single dose of LSD.

'GREATEST'

But, he said, the girl "still thinks her LSD trip is the greatest thing that ever happened to her."

He said the youth who suffers daily convulsions confessed to having taken LSD only after Dr. Dahl and a neurologist had come to a dead end trying to find the cause of the convulsions.

One patient with an eye problem sees what looks like snow on a television screen when he looks at shiny objects, he said, while others "talk about seeing a sound wave preceding motion like moving their hands."

School Beard Right

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A California appeals court ruled Tuesday that a teacher has the right to wear a beard in the classroom.

California's second district court of appeal, in reversing a superior court ruling, says the U.S. constitution gives Paul Finot, a suspended teacher, the right to wear his beard in school.

"A beard, for a man, is an expression of his personality," wrote Justice James Cobey. Finot, 43, sports a vandyke beard and moustache. In 1963, school officials of Pasadena reassigned him from his Grade 12 government class to home tutoring because he refused to shave off the beard.

IN EMULATION

Why did Finot choose to wear a beard at the start of the 1963-64 school year at John Muir high school in Pasadena? Cobey said he had no idea, but he added: "Perhaps it was in emulation of such bearded great men before him as John Muir himself, Socrates or Abraham Lincoln, to mention but three."

When informed of the court's decision, Finot exclaimed: "It's just wonderful — grab it, it's been a long wait — 3½ years."

Used in Treating Adolescent Problems

Hospital Provides Pill to Girls in High School

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A hospital here has begun providing birth control pills to sexually active high school girls.

"To the best of our knowledge," said a doctor who helped start the program at Sinai Hospital, "it is the only one of its kind in the country at this time."

The providing of pills is a part of a program which offers treatment of adolescent problems from acne to and through pregnancy.

The hospital describes the recipients of the birth control pills as "sexually active," and

Dr. Leon Gordis, a pediatrician at Sinai, said Tuesday about 60 girls have been referred to the program in the last four months.

"The teen-ager is essentially unprepared for motherhood," Dr. Gordis said. "An unwanted pregnancy is often a tragic event."

Girls accepted into the program receive the pills only after intensive individual and group counselling and only with parental consent.

Reservists Mark 20 Years

An old ship's figurehead will be officially donated to the B.C. Maritime Museum Saturday, in commemoration of the 20th anniversary of continuous commission by the naval reserve division HMCS Malahat.

The ceremony, in Bastion Square at 3:30 p.m., will take the form of a presentation of a plaque to be attached to the figurehead of an Indian chief lent to the museum in 1964, when the division was moved from the old Customs Building on Wharf Street to HMCS Naden.

The figurehead has been with the division since 1951. Its origin is obscure, but it is believed to have been donated by a retired RCN boatswain. It has long been dubbed Chief Malahat by the hundreds of citizen sailors who have marched past him on their way to and from weekly drills.

FIRST COMMANDER

Among special guests present Saturday will be Capt. Ronald Jackson, RCNR (Ret.), of Pender Island, who was the division's first commanding officer when it was commissioned on St. George's Day, April 23, 1947, in HMC Dockyard.

The present commanding officer, Cmdr. William F. Walker, RCNR, who also joined the division when it was formed, will make the presentation to museum president Rear Admiral M. G. Stirling, RCN (Ret.).

The only other original active list member still serving is Cmdr. Leslie J. Fuller, RCNR, the division's operations officer.

FIRST RESERVES

Naval reservists have had an up-and-down existence in the Victoria area. First-ever reserve sailors in Canada formed an enthusiastic group of volunteers here in 1912, just in time to see service in the First World War. They were disbanded after that conflict, lived a short existence in 1923 and were reorganized again as a recruiting centre early in the Second World War.

With peace came de-commissioning again and the division was paid off in 1946, only to be reorganized the following year. During the present commission, the division has been variously located in HMC Dockyard, Moresby House on Esquimalt Road, the old minesweeper HMCS Sault St. Marie, the Customs Building on Wharf Street and now within the confines of CFB Esquimalt.

RAINBOW LEADS

HMCS Malahat also administered a naval reserve flying squadron of four aircraft at Patricia Bay airport from 1954 to 1964, when it was disbanded.

Present strength is more than 120 officers, men and Wrens with the University Naval Training Division at University of Victoria as an added administrative responsibility.

Besides Capt. Jackson, previous commanding officers include Capt. G. A. V. Thomson, Capt. J. D. Garrard and Capt. Peter Thomas.

The sea cadet band of RCSCC Rainbow will lead a brief parade along Langley Street prior to the presentation ceremonies. A guard and platoons of men and Wrens will form the rest of the parade.

Campbell Charge 'Incomprehensible'

Indignant Mayor Answers

Mayor Stephen indignantly rejected Wednesday the charge by Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell that his appeal for a royal commission to investigate municipal-provincial relations was inspired by the Liberal party.

"I will not, as mayor of Victoria, get down to the level of accusation but such a charge coming from the representative of a so-called senior government is incomprehensible," the mayor said.

"Surely a minister is given his portfolio in the department of municipal affairs to help us and not to taunt us."

Mayor Stephen recently reiterated a demand that a commission was needed to look into the increasingly serious financial plight of the municipalities, which, he says, are being asked to bear far too great a fiscal load.

Mr. Campbell, in rebuttal, challenged municipal leaders to come up with a real need for such a commission.

Any information which a royal commission would uncover is currently available to the municipalities, he said, and pointed to an increase this year of $14,100,000 in direct grants to school districts.

The fact remains the plight of the municipalities is increasingly grave, the mayor said Wednesday.

Greatly increased education costs and a proportionately large increase in the mill rate (4.8 for Victoria), simply means the city will have to cut back on necessary work in other areas.

"Education is a prime responsibility but it is only one and it is not right that other work should be put off to satisfy one function," Mayor Stephen said.

There has been no review of provincial-municipal relations in B.C. for 20 years, the mayor said, and, at that time the Goldenberg report recommended that, as the cost of municipal services increased, the provincial government should assume an increasingly greater share of educational costs.

"All we are asking is the same fair deal that the premier is asking from the federal government," Mayor Stephen said.

What kind of driver are you?

Take this test and find out which Firebird is for you.

You're a Firebird driver if:

Check the appropriate boxes:
☐ You're in love with sports cars. ☐ You think all cars should have bucket seats, carpeting and a wood grain styled dash.
☐ You're tired of docking the Queen Mary every time you park. ☐ You're an attractive young secretary. ☐ You have an attractive young secretary.
☐ A 3-speed is your speed (but you might pay extra for a silky-smooth automatic). ☐ You love a convertible. But you can find happiness in a sleek hardtop.
☐ You find it hard to believe that a six can act like an eight—but you're willing to be convinced. ☐ You love to run your toes through yards of nylon blend carpeting. ☐ You think the loudest noise you hear at 60 should be the thumping of your heart. ☐ Happiness is choosing from an option list that includes everything from rally wheels to power steering.
☐ You like to do something while you're driving—like driving. ☐ And you're a Firebird driver if you don't want to pay an arm and a leg for what you see in the picture down there—even though it comes with things like a space-saver collapsible spare and a sophisticated Overhead Cam Six that squeezes 165 hp out of regular fuel. (You don't believe 165 hp? May be you're not ready for a brand new Firebird!)

You're a Firebird Sprint driver if:

Check the appropriate boxes:
☐ Italian movie actresses turn you on. ☐ You look smashing in sunglasses. ☐ You think the greatest engine ever invented is the overhead cam. ☐ You take your vacations at Sebring. Watching cars. ☐ You know a "carrozzeria" isn't some place where you buy bread. ☐ There are times when you'd rather listen to a well-tuned engine than a radio. ☐ You sometimes find yourself talking to your car. ☐ You flip for a heavy-duty suspension that welds your car to the road. ☐ You don't want to buy a $12,000 sports car, just drive one. ☐ You sneer at any engine that can't put out over 5,000 rpm. ☐ You crave extra-cost options like front wheel disc brakes and a hood-mounted tach. ☐ You think "vita" can't be "dolce" unless you've got something like you see in the picture, under power of a 4-barrel 215-horsepower Overhead Cam Six. ☐ Does this sound like you, sport?

You're a Firebird 326 driver if:

Check the appropriate boxes:
☐ You'd like to find a sports car that could please both you and your wife. ☐ You think kids are great, but station wagons are dull. ☐ You could go for V8 zap if you didn't have to pay for it at the gas station. ☐ You wanted to run away to sea when you were 40. ☐ You want a sports car that can carry five and an Irish setter. ☐ At the class reunion you were shocked at how old everyone else is getting. ☐ You think a "family" car ought to start with all-Morrokide upholstery, bucket seats or optional bench, carpeting and the complete GM safety package. ☐ You like the Beatles as well as you did Glenn Miller. ☐ You get the urge to shout "contact" every time you start the engine. ☐ You just realized you only live once. ☐ And you're a Firebird 326 driver if you're just waiting for us to clinch it by telling you about its Wide-Track ride and the 326 cubic inch V8 that delivers a glorious 250 horses on regular (yes, regular!) gas. ☐ Could we be talking about you, Flash?

You're a Firebird H.O. driver if:

Check the appropriate boxes:
☐ You'd sleep with your car—if they'd let you. ☐ You wear chukka boots on dates. ☐ You like the way a trained athlete moves. ☐ You know what 4-bbl carburetion, dual exhausts, heavy rated springs and wide-oval tires are for. ☐ You wear driving gloves even when you're not driving. ☐ You think stripes look better on cars than on ties. ☐ You've been thinking of taking up sky diving. ☐ You just might want a 4.11 rear axle ratio some afternoon, and like to know it's available. ☐ You know a gymkhana isn't something that you eat with rice. ☐ You like knowing you can equip your car with a 4-speed, disc brakes and a hood-mounted tachometer. ☐ You insist cars should be heard as well as seen. ☐ You know in your heart "HO" stands for High Output. (It does.) ☐ And you're a Firebird H.O. driver if, after one look down there, you want to ask your dealer to open the hood and show you the V8 where all those 285 horses hide out.

You're a Firebird 400 driver if:

Check the appropriate boxes:
☐ You get a kick from champagne. ☐ You know what a chicane is. And what to do when you meet one. ☐ You think all gearshifts belong on the floor. ☐ You're a stick lover but you'd pay more for a 3-speed Turbo Hydra-Matic. ☐ Your wife knows better than to tell you how to drive. ☐ You think scoops on the hood ought to be standard. ☐ You usually come out ahead when you go to Las Vegas. ☐ You think the sound of music is the chirp of wide-oval tires. ☐ You like to gun the engine just to hear the rumble of dual exhausts. ☐ You know what "GT" stands for. And can translate it. ☐ You used to spend your allowances on recordings of engine sounds. ☐ You know the Grand Prix circuit isn't an electrical connection. ☐ A Ram Air induction system does the same thing for your spirits that it does for the engine. ☐ You think all engines should be chromed. ☐ And you're a Firebird 400 driver if you think anything that looks as great as what you see down there deserves nothing less than a 400 cubic inch V8, complete with a 4-barrel carb, 325 hp and 410 foot pounds of torque. (Just lift the hood!) Is this the real you, Spunky?

Caviar and Cream

MIAMI (UPI)—She may miss her mistress but life for Toots, a Siamese cat, is going to be a bowl of caviar-flavored cream.

Toots' owner, Mrs. Hazel K. Matheis, died April 9 and left an estate of more than $50,000 and a directive in her will that it be used to take care of Toots until she dies. After that Mrs. Matheis' relatives will share in the remaining estate.

Best guess at Toots' age is 8 to 10 years. A veterinarian said that with good care she could live to be 17 or 18.

Russ Gibb, a school teacher who is sponsoring the event, billed it as a "live, on-stage haircut, administered by a professional barber." He said the dance is attended every Saturday night by "hundreds of teenagers and hippies from Michigan, Ohio and Indiana."

Tiny Kiwi Iron-Man Takes Boston Grind

BOSTON (AP) — Dave McKenzie, pint-sized iron man from New Zealand, ended Japanese domination of the Boston Athletic Association marathon in decisive fashion Wednesday, charging through cold rain for a record clocking of 2 hours, 15 minutes and 45 seconds.

The 24-year-old McKenzie beat the four-man Japanese contingent on the hills about five miles from the finish and streaked to an easy victory in the 1st annual Patriot's Day classic.

Tom Laris, former two-mile Ivy League champion from Dartmouth College, also picked up lost ground on the hills and came through strong to capture second place in 2:16:48.

Yutaka Aoki made a strong bid for a third straight Japanese triumph in the 26 mile, 385 yard run from Hopkinton to Boston, but faded after trying to catch McKenzie on Heartbreak Hill in Newton.

Aoki came in third in 2:17:17. Unheralded Lou Castagnola, a Washington federal government worker, was fourth in 2:17:48, and Italian champion Antonio Ambu was fifth in 2:18:04.

CANADIAN SIXTH

Andy Boychuk of Toronto, Canadian national champion, was sixth in 2:18:17, followed by Japan's Takaaki Inoue in 2:20:41 and Tooru Terasawa in 2:21:17. Petty Officer Danny McFadden of the British navy in 2:22:06 and Finland champion Kalvi Hakki in 2:22:07.

McKenzie, five-foot-four, 120-pound newspaper printer, boasted his fourth marathon victory since Jan. 28 in overpowering the field and shattering the course record of 2:16:33, set by Morio Shigematsu of Japan when he led a 1-2 3-5-6 Japanese finish in 1965.

A year ago, another Japanese team was sent to Boston and finished 1-2-3-4 after running the opposition into the ground.

Red-Hot Palmer Demolishes Par

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Arnold Palmer, who was not quite good enough when he lost the $100,000 tournament of champions here by one stroke Sunday, fired a record-breaking 63 Tuesday to win the first Tony Lemma memorial scholarship golf tournament.

The 63 broke the old Stardust course mark of 64 which Palmer fired Sunday in the final round of the big tourney which he lost by one stroke to Frank Beard.

In the best-ball foursome phase of the Lemma 18-hole classic, a pro-am team headed by Bobby Nichols of Louisville, Ky., won with a net of 28-28-57. His amateur partners were Art Anderson, Los Angeles; Don Dawson, Detroit, Mich. and Armand Cerami, Miami, Fla.

Nichols was second in individual scoring with a 70.

The pros played without cash rewards but the leaders were given automobiles.

The $100 entry fees put up by amateurs plus additional moneys from the sponsors will provide four-year college scholarships for two students to be selected in August by a committee of sports writers and college and high school golf coaches.

The tournament was founded in memory of "Champagne Tony" Lemma, popular pro who was killed in an airplane crash last July.

Fight Card Slated For Friday

What promises to be an outstanding amateur boxing card will be presented by the London Boxing Club at the Club Tango, View Street, on Friday night.

Club officials have lined some exceptional talent. Among the headliners will be Bill Taylor, who lost a close decision to Wes Craven in the heavy-weight final in the recent Diamond Gloves tournament in Vancouver. Harold Handlen, Las Vegas, Gary Van Bunkirk, Jim O'Neill and Ron and Dave Way. Handlen, rated by some to be good enough to win the Canadian bantam-weight title, has won in his weight class in Golden Gloves competition in Portland, Seattle, Edmonton and Vancouver. Van Bunkirk, another 125-pounder, has won Bronze and Emerald Boy honors as well as his last 14 fights.

O'Neill, 147 pounds, is an Emerald Gloves champion and the Way brothers, 65-pound Ron and 75-pound Dave, were both Emerald Gloves champions this year.

Action Friday starts at 8 and the admission is $1 with students and old-age pensioners to pay 50 cents.

Quit Puttering Around

New Gizmo Key to Gold Trail

CHICAGO (AP)—Putting can give you a winning golf game or break your spirit, but there is always hope the next stroke will make you a master putter.

Now there is a chance the guess work may be taken out of the touchy putter.

A design engineer has come up with a practice putter designed to enable a golfer to practice with accuracy and eliminate side-stroking the ball.

He calls the new weapon a concentrator. It shows the golfer immediately whether he is stroking the ball to the right or left. Pat Simmons, 34, a teaching golf professional and technical director of a Los Angeles golf equipment firm, says the new club is really a fine idea.

It consists of a metal sphere the same size, 1.68 inches, as a golf ball. Fitted to a golf shaft, the sphere is a tricky teacher.

"It forces you to make contact on dead centre of the ball," he said. "It gave me three course records at two courses after a period of practice."

Simmons set two course records at Rancho Sierra in Lancaster, Calif., making nine holes in 28 strokes and 18 holes in 60. He set a record of 62 over 18 holes at Rogue Valley near Medford, Ore. Simmons expects to rejoin the golf tour soon. He has helped over a relatively short drive game.

"One of the things to get in your mind is your noggins," he said. "You just can't guess during tournament play."

Another tip he learned in reading a green is to imagine it is covered with water and figure where the water is going to run. Wherever it goes the ball will go.

"I got that from Chuck Seals of Candlewood Country Club, Whittier, Calif.," he said. "I wish I had thought of that. It's so simple."

Racquet Club Near Ready As Superintendent Named

Lloyd Kearns took over his new job last Saturday, and that means that the new premises of the Victoria Racquet Club at Gordon Head and Ruby Roads will soon be operational.

Fresh from seven years with the North Shore Winter Club in Vancouver, Kearns had been appointed as building superintendent and ice-maker at the handsome new family club which is still under construction but due to have its first facilities open before the end of next month.

Kearns, a well-known curler, has had years of ice-making experience starting in Cruik, Smell, when he was 18 years of age. He spent some time with a firm which specialized in refrigeration on buses before taking over as ice-maker at the North Shore club, at that time the largest winter club in the province.

During his stay with the North Shore club he held instructional classes in curling and made a big success out of a junior curling clinic.

Curlers will share the skating rink with skaters during the first season, but a separate curling building is in the future plans of the club and, it is hoped, will be ready for the 1968-69 season.

The skating rink will be ready for use late in May and if tentative plans are finalized, the new club will get its start during the first week of June with a tennis tournament and a bonspiel.

Tentative bonspiel plans call for a mixed bonspiel, probably starting on Monday, June 5, with the entry limit to 48 rinks.

playing through three events with curling only in the evenings.

"I think the idea of an opening bonspiel is excellent," Kearns said. "Not only will curling be a major part of our activity in the future but it will present a fine opportunity for us to show our facilities to city curlers and the game to our non-curling members."

Raiders Win Puck Playoff

Ingraham Raiders, who reached their peak late in the season, continued their surge Thursday night at Memorial Arena and captured the Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League playoff title.

Raiders blanked Victoria Machinery Depot 4-0 to take the best-of-three final in two straight games.

Bob Holmes, with two goals, John Mosey and Brian Andrews scored for the champions.

Yankees Snatch Lead With Whitey Clicking

St. Louis Cardinals are unbeaten after six games and lead the National League but Whitey Ford has apparently made a successful comeback and New York Yankees are leading the American League for the second time this season.

Ford, who saw little action because of injuries last season and wasn't even on the Yankee roster when the club went to

With Minnesota Twins sneaking by Baltimore Orioles, 3-2, Ford's pitching put the Yankees in a half-game in front with a 4-2 showing. Only Cleveland Indians, who beat Kansas City Athletics, 4-1, with three home runs, have lost fewer than three games.

The Cardinals rolled on despite a barrage of home runs by

San Francisco Giants, whose 7-5 defeat last night was their seventh in eight games.

Ken Henderson hit two home runs, Jay Alou and Willie McCovey each hit one as the Giants tried to give Juan Marichal his first victory after two losses.

But the trouble with the San Francisco home runs was that they came with the bases empty while the Cards got three runs on a homer by Tim McCarver and two on an over-the-wall shot by Julian Javier.

Marichal lasted until the fourth inning, too long to avoid taking his third straight defeat. Atlanta Braves got Hank Aaron's first two home runs of the season in defeating Houston Astros, 4-1, for their fifth straight win. And Los Angeles Dodgers, who lost their first four games, downed Cincinnati Reds, 3-2, when Ron Hunt had his fourth hit a 10th-inning double.

It beat Bologna, Italy, 1-0 in their quarter-final, second-leg game, making the total for the two-game series 1-1.

LONDON (AP) — Liverpool, reigning English soccer champions, cancelled plans to play for an exhibition game in San Francisco May 17.

A Liverpool spokesman said the team cannot make the trip because of outstanding English League games.

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Glasgow Rangers of Scotland defeated Slavia of Sofia, 1-0, today in their first match of the semi-finals round in the European Soccer cup winners tournament.

MILAN (Reuters) — Internazionale Milan and CSKA Sofia, Bulgaria, drew 1-1 in the first game of their European Cup semi-final soccer series Wednesday night.

He fell victim to a one-hitter pitched by Boston-rookie Bill Rohr to his 1967 debut but yesterday he shut out the Chicago White Sox just to make sure he couldn't get worse than a tie.

As Le Mans Looms

The Yankees, who will have to rely mostly on pitching if they are to make any appreciable jump from last season's last place, managed to give Ford an early three-run lead with their pop-gun attack. And that's the way it ended.

Sacrifice fly by John Kennedy and Charlie Smith and a single by Joe Pepitone produced the runs Los Angeles Dodger fashion.

Bitter Duel Brewing

By MAXWELL BOYD

LONDON — Two Ferrari-Ford skirmishes during the past few weeks were curtainraisers to a big showdown in the Le Mans 24-hour race on June 10-11, with an Anglo-American contest that is likely to be the most bitter and hardest fought motor-racing duel since Mercedes met Jaguar at Le Mans more than 10 years ago.

Ford wiped the floor with Ferrari at Le Mans last year after the Italians' six-year monopoly of wins. Then Ferrari had his revenge at Daytona in February when the new P4 car finished 1-2-3 and all the Fords broke down. Ford then won the Sebring 12-hours a couple of weeks ago with their new Mark 4 car, but without Ferrari opposition. Finally, both sides fixed their muscles at each other in the early practice for Le Mans last weekend.

BOTH VERY FAST

The two days of practice proved one thing: that both cars are frighteningly fast. The Ferraris were quickest round the circuit, the Fords fastest in a straight line. By Saturday afternoon, Bandini's P4 had carved five seconds off last year's record, raising the lap speed to 146.5 m.p.h. Meanwhile, the fastest Ford had chalked up about 225 m.p.h. on Mulsanne straight. That evening, Bruce McLaren, last year's winner, spoke so casually about doing such speeds that you'd think he was driving down to the shops.

CAN'T BE UNDERATED

Ford was there with the full circus — some 50 people filling over each other in the pits, of whom only about 10 seemed to have a job to do. Ferrari, on the other hand, operated with usual spartan economy. Their new team manager, Franco Lini, worked the stopwatch, backed by his chief engineer and a handful of mechanics.

But the Fords cannot be underrated just because of their typically American approach. They won last year because their cars held together for 24 hours.

and that's what matters in the final count. Jack Passino, who master-minds all Detroit Ford racing activities, told me that Le Mans was "absolutely vital" to Ford in general and Henry Ford II in particular. So every Ford stop will be pulled out in the effort to vanquish Ferrari.

Ferrari, however, was at a disadvantage last year. Its efforts were directed mainly towards sorting out the new Grand Prix car, and the team was split by personality clashes that culminated in John Surtees leaving them. This time, they have a closely-knit group of drivers and technicians, a car that looks to me like the perfect Le Mans weapon, plenty of PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Connie Day of Cleveland, Tenn., swept four holes in a row, two with birdies, starting at the eighth hole for a 3 and 2 upset victory over medalist Mrs. Marlene Stewart Streiff of Toronto in the second round of the North-South women's amateur golf tournament Wednesday.

Miss Day was two over par as she beat the Canadian golfer to advance to this afternoon's third round.

Mrs. Streiff struggled to an uphill 1-up victory over a three-handicap player, Mrs. David Chaffee of Rumford, R.I., in the first round Tuesday.

Firefighters Nip Unlucky Luckies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Firefighters defeated North Shore Luckies, 3-2, on penalty kicks Wednesday night after the two teams had battled to a 1-1 overtime tie in Pacific Coast Soccer League play.

The game was played to decide third and fourth positions in league standings — and the question of who plays whom in the semi-finals this weekend. The two teams had tied for third place in regular league play.

Tom Miller gave Firemen a 1-0 lead at the 29 minute mark but John Bruce tied the score for North Shore with 15 minutes left in regulation time. Neither

Centremen Could Decide Who Grabs Stanley Cup

MONTREAL — It will be Toronto brawn and savvy against Montreal speed and elan in the Stanley Cup final but the series, which opens here tonight, could well be decided by the starting six centremen.

Strength down the middle is what normally wins in any team sport, and this is particularly true in hockey. And that brings up interesting speculation about the respective merits of the opposing centre trios.

Montreal Canadiens are generally considered to have the best set of centremen in Jean Beliveau, Henri Richard and Ralph Backstrom but Toronto's set of Dave Keon, Wally Stembkowski and Red Kelly have won a lot of support after their effort against Chicago Black Hawks in the final.

REAY A SUPPORTER

Among their supporters is Billy Reay, Chicago coach. "They outplayed us at centre, that was the difference," Reay summed up after his club was eliminated in the sixth game of its semi-final.

If there is one thing about the Toronto centremen that is unique it is their different, but effective, styles.

The 27-year-old Keon, probably the club's best skater, is a stand-out checker who almost always will take his man out of the play.

"Davey," says Brian Conacher, "really forechecks the other team into mistakes."

KELLY AMONG BEST

Although a constant fore-checker, Kelly doesn't resemble Keon in any manner. He has great control of the puck with his skates and being a converted defenceman, continually drops back to help out the defence.

"He has to be one of the best centremen in the league," says Punch Imlach, his admiring coach. "What he lacks in speed he more than makes up with brains."

Stembkowski, a sophomore who seemed to find himself late in the season and was a standout in the semi-final against Chicago, is a big, tough-hitting forward.

HITTING PAYS OFF

"I figure if I go out against a good centre and I hit him a few times he starts looking for me and forgetting about the puck," is the way Stembkowski explains his approach to the art of playing centre.

"He's the guy who made me go," says winger Jim Pappin, who was sent to Rochester of the American Hockey League during the season, then came back to have a 21-goal season playing on Stembkowski's line.

Backing up the line's three starters the Leafs have Mike Walton, a shifty, fast-skating rookie who can do a good fill-in job on any line.

TWO OF GREATEST

However, Canadiens have two of hockey's all-time greats in Beliveau and Richard and in Backstrom they have a speedster who hit his best form late in the season and in the semi-finals against New York Rangers.

Beliveau, hampered early in the season by an injured thumb and then set back later by an accident which almost cost him the sight in one eye, played in only 53 games and his production of 12 goals and 28 points was his lowest since he broke into the National Hockey League in 1953.

However, like the rest of his club, Beliveau came on late in the season and was again Canadiens' ice leader in the semi-finals.

MOST EFFECTIVE

Richard also got away slowly this season but the rugged veteran was the most effective centremen in the league at the end of the season.

Off what has happened, it all adds up to what appears to be an even match-up. Over the season, Toronto centremen combined for 46 goals and 79 assists to 47 goals and 87 assists for the Montreal trio. And making it more even, all six reached top form late in the season.

There was also little to choose between the two clubs. Leafs outscored Canadiens, 204-202, in the 70-game schedule but the Canadiens had a good bulge defensively, allowing only 188 goals to 211 for the Leafs.

EQUALIZING FACTOR

Here again, however, there is an equalizing factor in that Johnny Bower and Terry Sawchuk were injured and only played 27 and 28 games, respectively.

Both veterans are now healthy and the Leafs feel they have an edge in goal, where the Canadiens have been relying on rookie Rogation Vachon. Bower and Sawchuk, the Leafs point out, are proven money performers.

On the other hand, Vachon has been little short of spectacular since stealing the first string job after being called up from the Central League to fill in because of injuries.

KEY MAN

In 19 league games, the 21-year-old youngster had a sparkling 2.48 goals-against average and he held the Rangers to eight goals in four games, after yielding four in the first game. And it was after Vachon was put in the nets that the Canadiens started the drive which put them in second place.

Canadiens start the series unbeaten in their last 15 games and with a 10-game win streak. Their last defeat came on March 8 and was, perhaps significantly, inflicted by the Leafs.

Although the Leafs lost winger Larry Jeffrey for the series in Tuesday's game against Chicago, they will enter the series surprisingly well off physically in view of the ruggedness of their semi-final. Jeffrey tore knee ligaments while bouncing Stan Mikita into the boards and was operated on yesterday. However, the rest of the Leafs have been pronounced fit with captain George Armstrong reported ready to take a regular turn.

Canadiens, who have rested since last Thursday and have all their old confidence back, are as healthy as a club can be at this stage of the season.

Claude Provost, who missed the last game of the semi-finals even that up with slow-down because of a thumb injury, and hitting.

Mahovlich Leads Playoff Scoring

Frank Mahovlich, the oft-maligned Toronto leftwinger, is leading Stanley Cup scoring with eight points.

The big veteran, often accused of lackadaisical play, had a fine semi-final series against Chicago Black Hawks and was one of the best forwards in the sixth game on Tuesday night.

He has scored three goals and has earned his five assists which give him eight points.

Right behind him is right-winger Jim Pappin, who came back after a demotion to Rochester of the American Hockey League to become one of the Toronto stars. He has three goals and four assists for seven points.

Chicago's Bobby Hull, who topped goal-scorers with four playoff shots, Toronto centres Wally Stembkowski and Dave Keon and Chicago defenceman Pierre Pilote each have six points.

Montreal centremen Jean Beliveau and Ralph Backstrom, who have been in only four playoff games, each have five points.

Totems Hang On To Lead Series

VANCOUVER (CP) — Seattle Totems took a one-goal lead by the end of the second period and then held on to edge Vancouver Canucks 2-1 at 1:47 of the second period, flipping a shot behind Smith while the Canucks were short-handed.

Les Hunt tied it up again at the 9:26 mark with a blistering slap shot from the point as Vancouver had the edge in manpower four men to three.

HUGHES GOT WINNER

Hughes then got what proved to be the winner, tipping in Noel Picard's drive from the point.

Smith, on loan to Vancouver for the series due to an injury to regular netminder Don Simmons, came up with 19 saves while Jim McLeod turned aside 24 for Seattle.

The Canucks pulled Smith in an effort to gain a tie with one minute remaining. Seattle was caught with too many men on the ice at 19:38 to give Vancouver a two-man advantage, 6-4, when a bench penalty was called on the Totems. The Vancouver squad was unable to score.

By Red Smith

A shrill whistle skirted and these old pappy guys took places in a V along the foul lines. At a second signal they marched in stiff single file out to first and third base, turned and drew up in ranks behind the pitching mound facing their leader for the day, James B. Wadley, and a little old guy totting a big American flag on a staff.

Holding red or blue baseball caps over their hearts, they sang "America," a cappella, and as the cracked voices died away, Jim Wadley led a cheer.

For the first time since Dec. 1, the Kids and Kubs of St. Petersburg's Three-Quarter Century Softball Club Inc. were defying the calendar.

"Ladies and gentlemen," the announcer said as the Kubs took the field, "you are looking at the oldest battery in the world. Pitching, John P. Maloney, 90, of Madison, New Jersey. Catching, Harry Hyland, 88, from Wilmington, Del."

It wouldn't happen anywhere in the world except down here in Medicare Junction, U.S.A.

Up From the Minors

For 37 winters, visitors to St. Petersburg—where the curbs are cut down at the sidewalks to make ramps for wheelchairs—have marvelled at the spectacle of gaffers of 75 and up scampering through a seven-inning ball game three afternoons a week.

"Has there ever been a rookie," asked Jerry Izenberg, of Newark, "who couldn't make it at 75 and had to play out in the bushes a few years until he was ready?"

"Well," said J. Arthur Rehage, "me, in a way. You see, there's the Gulls and Pels of the Half-Century Club for players 50 and over, and then there's a kind of minor league with no age limits, the Liniment League. I was 69 when I came down here in '56, too young for these clubs and too old for the Pels and Gulls, because I'd only be around with them for a few years. So I played in the Liniment League but they'd drunk up all the liniment before I joined them."

Pat Rehage, 89, and president of the Three-Quarter Century Club. He has snapping hazel eyes, a complexion of marvellously healthy pink, plays all positions except pitching. He says he drinks a lot of water and plenty of whiskey. He says that, when he was a photoengraver in New Orleans, he was a friend of Shoeless Joe Jackson and talked Joe out of jumping to the Federal League in 1914. He says nobody can ever tell him Joe was "in on that deal," meaning the Black Sox sellout in the 1919 World Series.

The Secret Shaver

Sitting in the stands while the boys took infield practice before the game, Pat Rehage had said that although Jack Maloney was the oldest player now active, he was still short of the record. "Bill Black pitched when he was 93 and died in an auto accident. Reminds me, we got another funeral today after we leave here."

"These fans, they're always offering a dollar for a home run and I got three dollars in my pants right now for hitting a homer with the bases filled. One day a lady offered two dollars for a grand slam. I went up in the stands to get her name and where she was from. I told her 'I won't embarrass you by asking for your phone number.' 'No no?' she says."

Working out on first base was a small man with a splendid Ulysses S. Grant beard of pure white. "That's Walter Lebe-good, from Orwinstburg, Pa.," Mr. Rehage said. "He's 86." He lowered his voice. "I happen to know he shaves when he's up in Pennsylvania."

"Hello, Jack," he said to a tall smiling man. "This is our star rookie up from the Pels and Gulls, Jack Wernz, just 75. Nobody's gonna catch him for the batting championship; he's hitting .700-something. You got your figures, George?"

George Herring, official scorer and announcer, displayed the current averages: Wernz, .702, with 10 home runs; Lee Morrison, .80, batting .546 with 14 home runs; Bill McCray, .77, strictly a leg hitter, with .532, but only two home runs; Ben Butts, a 78-year-old Babe Ruth with 15 home runs.

Maloney on the Paths

Mr. Herring said Jack Wernz was also the leading pitcher with only one defeat. "Well," Mr. Rehage said, "he's big and he's younger than anybody else."

Walter S. Swanson, of Warren, Pa., fixed the announcer with a stern eye. "How many times must I tell you I'm 87?" "I go by the book," George Herring said. "And the book has you down for 81."

"Get it right today," Mr. Swanson warned.

The Kids couldn't hit Jack Maloney's underhand stuff and the Kubs got to his opponent, Wat Baker, 78, for two runs in the first inning. In the second Jap Myers, 78, hit a two-run homer for the Kubs. Jack Maloney hit a ground ball to third and stood at the plate watching Wilfred Goulet, 82, field the hit. When the throw bounded past first base, he dropped his bat and ran, making it on nonagenarian legs. Then William Davis, 84, socked a fly between outfielders.

"Home run," a spectator said.

"Not with that runner in front of him," another said. But Mr. Maloney poured on the coal. Running from first like Ernie Lombardi than Maury Wills, he scored from first with Mr. Davis behind him.

Jack Maloney went the whole 7 innings to win, 11-7. Jack Wernz didn't play. Protecting his average no doubt.

Clay Still Trying For Legal Escape

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay filed new papers with the Supreme Court today in an attempt to block his scheduled April 28 induction into the army at Houston.

They suggested federal courts were motivated by "political considerations" in refusing to hear Clay's challenge to the selective service system.

"Policy and practical considerations are not justification for denial of a citizen's constitutional rights," the lawyers said.

DID NOT SPECIFY They did not say specifically what these alleged considerations were.

On Monday, the court refused to block Clay's induction and refused to direct the convening of a special three-judge federal panel to consider his claim that the selective service system discriminates against Negroes.

Later that day, the U.S. circuit court in Cincinnati refused to stay a lower court decision ordering Clay to report for induction.

He filed his papers with the Supreme Court today under his Black Muslim name, Muhammad Ali.

Lack of Courage Reinforcing Roadblock

'Rip Secrecy from Birth Control Means'

By JOHN MATTERS

Social workers should "rip off the shrouds of secrecy" which surround birth control measures and start telling people how babies can be prevented. (See also Page 38.)

The advice is from Mrs. Glen Hamilton, planning consultant with United Community Services in Vancouver. She spoke Wednesday at the Child Welfare League's northwest annual conference in Victoria.

"Numerous studies have shown that uneducated and impoverished families lack courage to initiate discussion of this topic with anyone — social workers, nurses or doctors."

"Reinforcing this roadblock, I suspect, is a lack of courage on the part of social workers to initiate such discussion. The whole subject has been wrapped in cotton batting and shrouded in mystery and embarrassment for a very long time."

Mrs. Hamilton said she has spent 20 years as a social worker, often watching mothers deteriorate year after year with the strain of unwanted and repeated pregnancies.

A mother in the urban slums with numerous small children to care for has no time to meet the needs of those who have reached puberty, said Mrs. Hamilton.

"The result is a pattern of truancy among the older children, one that leads to dropping out of school, and to delinquent and criminal behavior."

She said it was an ironical situation in that everyone agreed something should be done, but no one did anything about it.

"Obviously, measures to prevent the birth of unwanted children would be welcomed not only by the families themselves but by the community at large, which is paying heavily through soaring welfare costs," said Mrs. Hamilton.

She listed roadblocks which social workers could help remove:

• The myth that low-income families want large numbers of children, "something which has been completely disproved in numerous studies."

• The myth that some churches are opposed to family planning. "All religious denominations have accepted the desirability of spaced childbirth," she said.

• The cost factor, by adding contraceptive devices to the list of medical supplies available to persons receiving social assistance.

Mrs. Hamilton also urged social workers to take the question of abortion "out of wraps and discuss it frankly and openly."

She said she hoped social workers would take to the newly-appointed royal commission into women's rights a brief urging that all Canadian women have the right to bear only those children whom they feel they can cherish and mother.

Tourist Trade Booster

Room Tax Favored By Mayor

A room tax proposal to raise $300,000 a year or more for financing of a district convention centre and a tourist promotion program was supported Wednesday by Mayor Hugh Stephen.

Commenting on a suggestion made recently by Courtney Haddock, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, the mayor said he did not believe it fair that the taxpayer should be asked to share the whole cost of a convention centre.

It was only fair, he said, to ask the tourist industry to pick up part of the tab and he thought the people who benefited from the tourist trade would be shortsighted to refuse.

ENCOURAGE PROVINCE

"If Mr. Haddock can gather evidence that a majority of the people in the accommodation industry favor such a move, I will do all I can to encourage the province to institute legislation for such a tax," the mayor said.

Mayor Stephen, who returned to his office Wednesday after a three-day visit to Palm Springs, Calif., said a four per cent tax is in effect in that community and it raises $400,000 a year, which is used exclusively for tourist promotion.

QUITE ACCUSTOMED

"At the moment such a tax is not possible under the Municipal Act but I can't help but feel the government might be sympathetic to amendments which would make it possible," the mayor added.

The bulk of the people who come to Victoria as visitors are from California, Washington and Oregon and are quite accustomed to such a levy, so it would be no surprise to them, said Mayor Stephen.

The mayor said he had no way of knowing just what such a tax would bring to Victoria and district but he imagined it would be between $200,000 and $300,000 a year and possibly more.

Solarium Drive Well Short

The Solarium Junior League has collected only $5,000 of a $15,000 objective in Monday night's door-to-door blitz.

However, Mrs. E. J. Lindsay, spokeswoman for the League, said many canvassers have yet to be heard from and she expects the total will increase substantially.

Anyone misled by the canvassers may mail donations to Box 177, Victoria.

University Money Due Soon

Saanich will probably make the first payment soon on a $48,000 pledge it made three years ago to the Three Universities Capital Fund.

It is expected $20,000 will be set aside in the municipality's 1967-68 budget for this purpose. The pledge was made on the basis of $1 per capita, based on the population of Saanich at that time.

The final decision on the $20,000 gift will be made during council's budget sessions next week.

School Plan Backed

By GEORGE INGLIS

The Victoria Labor Council went on record Wednesday as supporting the Greater Victoria school board in its proposed $13,930,234 school construction program, which will be submitted to ratepayers in a referendum May 13.

The council members had some pertinent questions to ask school board chairman Peter Burn, however, before endorsing the school board's action in planning the construction campaign, largest in the history of Victoria schools.

John Schibbl, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building and Trades Council, asked, "Will tenders on portable classrooms be limited to B.C. manufacturers? Will shops using non-union workers supply them?"

PART OF PROGRAM
Mr. Schibbl was referring to 26 portable classrooms, proposed as part of the school program.

Mr. Burn countered by asking Mr. Schibbl, "What is your opinion? What do you feel we should do?"

"Since we won't be getting the work on the classrooms (since they are shop-manufactured), at least we would like to see them made in union shops," Mr. Schibbl said.

'WE'RE PAYING'
B.C. Federation of Labor president E. T. Staley of Victoria said, "I feel the portables should be manufactured in Victoria, from materials supplied right here. After all, we are the people who will be paying for them."

"I have no argument with that," Mr. Burn replied, "if a Victoria firm is the lowest tenderer."

Mr. Burn outlined the board's proposal to the delegates, enlarging on the site acquisitions, school construction, reconstruction and renovation planned under the $13,930,234 referendum which is shared equally by the provincial government, $6,583,125 to come from that source.

The smaller referendum, for $742,784, he explained, was for items not eligible for provincial participation.

Mr. Burn said 25 or 30 divisions would have to go on shifts in September if the bylaw fails, "and shifts are bad for education and bad for family life."

He said bids on the $1,000,000 Christie Point School would be opened today at 5:15 p.m. in the Paul Building.

The council approved unanimously Mr. Schibbl's motion to endorse the school board's program.

Car Insurance Claims

Saskatchewan Paying Plenty

By BILL STAVDAL
Legislative Reporter

The Saskatchewan government compulsory car insurance scheme has paid more than 82 per cent of total income in claims, B.C.'s royal commission on automobile insurance was told Wednesday.

Details of the Saskatchewan plan, unique on the continent, were given in a report by James Dutton, general manager of the Saskatchewan Government Insurance Office.

The royal commission investigating all aspects of auto insurance resumed sittings Wednesday in the Law Courts building.

HEARING EVIDENCE

Commission chairman Mr. Justice R. A. B. Wootton and commissioners Dr. Peter Laszlo and Charles Wells are expected to spend today and Friday at least hearing evidence and cross-examination relating to Saskatchewan's experience in state insurance.

Wednesday's sitting was entirely devoted to presentation of a 58-page report by Mr. Dutton. The report was requested by the commissioners, who have finished hearing briefs submitted by the public.

INSURANCE FIRMS

Mr. Dutton and five aides will be cross-examined by commission counsel Gordon Rae of Vancouver and lawyers representing the more than 200 insurance companies in B.C.

Valve Causes Flood

The basements of three homes were flooded on McNair Street when a stuck regulating valve caused Smith's Hill reservoir to overflow at 6 a.m. Wednesday.

City police were called out and they in turn called out a crew from the city's public works department which freed the rotation valve in the 16,000,000-gallon storage area and allowed the water to subside.

City crews then got on the job and pumped out the cellars of the three homes which were flooded after water crept over the top of the reservoir.

The reservoir in the high Topaz area usually holds between 12 and 15 feet of water and is designed so that the overflow runs off into a six-inch pipe at the 18 foot level.

But on Wednesday the overflow system was not functioning and the water crept over the lip. City engineering officials said they did not know what caused the regulatory system to fail.

The reservoir was inspected twice a week, they said, and was last looked at on Friday.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I was elected mayor of this town of 1,700 people by a write-in vote in 1965. It is my first public office, and I am inexperienced in the ways of politicians.

Some Federal-State bureaus want to spend $60,000 to restore an unneeded airport runway. I hold that since the other runways can handle the traffic easily this expenditure would be a waste of money. I want to turn the $60,000 back to the public treasury.

I am told that this would be foolish. The word is "if we don't take the $60,000 some other town will." I feel this is the same as saying, "Let's rob the bank because it's going to be robbed anyway."

Please help me resolve this ethical problem, Ann Landers. Is it right for our town to accept Federal taxpayers' money, assuming the facts are precisely as I have stated them? I look to you for guidance. — Richard S. Morrison, Mayor of Delta, Utah.

Dear Mayor Morrison: If any of my readers run into Diligence, I hope they'll send him to Delta, Utah. There he will find an honest man.

It is heartening to know, in this age, when larceny (both petty and grand) is defended as "a way of life" that some people are still concerned with ethics.

Unless a committee of five Delta business men can produce evidence that the runway is needed — or will be needed because of future growth — turn the money back to the government.

Dear Ann Landers: Ten years ago my husband and I had a terrible argument, and I locked him out of the house. He went to his mother's and she persuaded him to stay two weeks "to teach me a lesson."

I'm happy to say we worked out our difficulties, and our marriage is now a very good one. Recently my mother-in-law, in a joking manner, reminded us of the incident (in the presence of other members of the family) and said she would do it again because "it is a mother's duty to protect her children at all times."

Our son is being married in a few months, and I would like to know how to handle the situation if his wife locks him out of the house and he tried to come home to me. Should I let him in? — BLOOMFIELD HILLS.

Dear Bloomfield: No. Tell him to go home and settle his domestic problems with his wife. The mother who tells her children (son or daughter), "If things don't go well, you can always come home," does them no favor. Countless separated and divorced couples would have pulled up their socks and learned to live together if they had no alternative.

City IODE Members On B.C. Executive

Several Victoria women have been named to the new executive of Provincial Chapter of British Columbia, IODE.

Elected at the conclusion of the four-day annual meeting in the Georgia Hotel last week were Mrs. Carlton Colard, a vice-president; Mrs. Elsie Lowthian, Echoes secretary; and Mrs. J. A. Dunn, world affairs convener.

Mrs. H. G. Heyworth, Vancouver, was again named provincial president and vice-presidents include Mrs. K. H. Bancroft, first; Mrs. W. H. Cowen, second, both of Vancouver; and additional vice-presidents Mrs. D. Colby, Vancouver; Mrs. A. B. Hall, Nanaimo; Mrs. D. J. Kerr, Kelowna; and Mrs. E. P. Wilson, West Vancouver. Also serving on the new executive are Mrs. R. R. Brough, Vancouver, secretary; Mrs. J. R. Murdoch, West Vancouver, assistant; Mrs. C. G. Welbourne, Burnaby, treasurer; Mrs. J. B. McRae, Coquitlam, organizing; Mrs. J. F. Macintyre, Vancouver, educational; Mrs. G. L. Bolton, New Westminster, services; Mrs. F. L. Middleton, West Vancouver, public relations; Mrs. J. B. Curran, Nanaimo, immigration and citizenship; Mrs. C. W. Jagg, Vancouver, commonwealth relations; and Mrs. G. F. Seldon, West Vancouver, standard bearer.

Among those serving as councillors are municipal regent Miss Christine MacNab, Mrs. Peter W. Bell, Mrs. A. H. C. Phipps, Mrs. C. D. Smith and Mrs. H. L. Woolson, all of Victoria.

Men Need Facials

KASKEATON (CP) — If someone is snitching mother's face cream, she shouldn't automatically blame daughter — the culprit may be daddy. Maurice Mullane of Regina, past vice-president of the Saskatchewan Association of Hair Stylists, says men need facials "at least once a month."

Bride's Grandmother Makes Cake For Jordan-Humphries Wedding

Tall standards of pink gladiolus, carnations and white chrysanthemums decorated St. Aidan's United Church for the marriage of Doreen Ivy Humphries and Mr. Allan Thomas Jordan.

Rev. A. G. MacLeod officiated at the pretty evening wedding for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Humphries, 1033 Finlayson Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Jordan, 6252 Oldfield Road.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white sheath gown of peau d'ange with a full train that fell gracefully from back waistline. Lace appliques enhanced the front of the lovely gown. Her shoulder-length veil was caught by a coronet of rhinestones and pearls and her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, borrowed from her aunt. Pink rosebuds and white chrysanthemums were in her cascade bouquet.

Bridesmaids, Mrs. Robert Rebbitt, bride's sister, and Mrs. Jack Gaunt, groom's sister, wore gowns of floor-length sheaths of melon ligoda highlighted by chiffon trains falling from large back bows. Lace appliques encircled the waistlines of the lovely gowns. They wore crystal pendants, gifts of the bride, and carried cascade bouquets of white gladiolus.

Mr. Brian MacIntosh was best man. Ushering were Mr. Douglas Tribe and Mr. Wayne Jordan.

A three-tiered cake, made and decorated by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. W. Kilbride, centred the head table at the reception which followed in Henderson Hall.

Mr. Les Isaacson proposed the toast to his niece.

For travelling on honeymoon to British Columbia Interior the new Mrs. Jordan wore a pale blue suit trimmed with white fox fur. She wore matching hat and black patent accessories and a corsage of white rosebuds.

On their return the newlyweds will make their home at 3022 Wascana Street.

Says Judy LaMarsh

Few Women Make Effort To Enter Political Life

TORONTO (CP) — Women must blame themselves for the fact that so few women are in professional or political life. State Secretary Judy LaMarsh said Tuesday.

"It seems to me that too many women are willing to concede that politics... is a man's world and that their own place in it, if they have any, is limited to supplying coffee and sandwiches," she said.

Addressing a centennial conference for women, Miss LaMarsh said only 14 women have sat in the House of Commons since 1921, when Agnes Macphail became the first woman made in the percentage of women in law, medicine and religion.

In 1961, women made up only three per cent of the lawyers and seven per cent of the doctors. There was virtually none among the clergy and professional theologians.

There was little doubt that discrimination persisted against the acceptance of women in many fields. In some cases it amounted to a total "mental blank," shared by both men and women.

Pope Raps Extremists

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul lashed out Wednesday at both extremes in the Roman Catholic Church — the ultra-liberals making unauthorized changes and the rigid conservatives fighting to block modernization. The Pope expressed "bitterness," "sorrow," "apprehension" and "affliction." He used these terms in a speech he delivered personally in Latin to a meeting of his commission to supervise liturgy changes authorized by the Vatican ecumenical council.

It was one of the strongest denunciations Pope Paul has made against what he considers excessive trends at work in the church since the updating movement was launched. He criticized those introducing unauthorized changes in worship practices. He assailed the kind of thought and the methods of church conservatives fighting such already-permitted changes as replacing Latin in the mass with modern languages. He called on both clergy and faithful "not to let themselves become enchanted by the itch for capricious experiment." He said he could not "keep silent our bitterness over some facts and tendencies that certainly do not favor the good results that the church expects from the diligent work of this commission." In his censure of conservatism, he singled out an incident that has been causing scandal in the Vatican — a published distribute in which a conservative cardinal attacked a leading Italian progressive prelate. The conservative, 81-year-old Antonio Cardinal Bacci, the Vatican's top Latin specialist, wrote the foreword to an essay that denounced Giose Cardinal Lercaro, archbishop of Bologna. Cardinal Lercaro, president of the "liturgy" commission, was characterized as a danger to Catholicism as great as Martin Luther or Marxism. Praising Cardinal Lercaro, the Pope said of the essay: "Such a publication obviously cannot have our consent. It edifies no one."

Sister-City Link Tightens

A program which will see the people of Palm Springs, Calif., and Victoria exchange fellow-ship at the service club, educational, church and economic level, will be investigated by a special committee to be appointed by Mayor Hugh Stephen.

Back in his office Wednesday following a three-day visit to the southern community, the mayor was enthusiastic about the sister-city plan instituted some months ago when a delegation from Palm Springs, which included the mayor, Edgar McCoubrey, visited Victoria.

The reciprocal visit was made by the mayor, and provincial cabinet ministers Robert Bonner, Leslie Peterson, Kenneth Kiernan and Waldo Skilling.

They were treated royally by the Palm Springs people, the mayor said, and as concrete evidence of the friendship between the two cities, Dr. Forrest Bird, president of the Bird Corporation of Palm Springs, presented the mayor with a new-model respirator which his company manufactures, for use in a Victoria hospital.

The respirator-reuscitator will go to Jubilee Hospital the mayor said.

Canada had been chosen as the country to be honored at the big Palm Springs Desert Festival to take place this month, Mayor Stephen said, and Highway Minister Gagliardi will represent the country and act as parade marshal at the big week-long celebration.

The sister-city proclamation, which the mayor brought home, was issued under a state department program in which California cities team up with other municipalities all over the world. Victoria was the second Canadian city to be chosen for the honor.

The mayor said he was thrilled at the hospitality and generosity of the people of Palm Springs and intended to appoint a committee to investigate and expand the sister-city program economically and otherwise.

Second Sign Vetoed

B.C. Telephone Co. doesn't need any signs "because it already has a monopoly," says Saanich Coun. William Noel.

He made the observation during council discussion of a bylaw which would have allowed a second free-standing sign at a service station at Quadra and McKensie.

Council, which earlier had asked the bylaw be prepared, subsequently decided to take no action on the proposal.

Coun. Edith Gunning suggested the service station didn't need the sign. In any case, she hoped it would be like a B.C. Telephone sign across the street, which wasn't garish.

Centennial Air Rally

Amateur Pilots Get Help

The centennial 4,000-mile, five-day cross-Canada air rally will take off from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland on Aug. 26 and end with the Labor Day week-end celebrations at Victoria's Patricia Bay airport.

More than 100 aircraft, each carrying two pilots, will be jockeying for a share of the $28,500 in prize money.

Official sanction and a grant of $5,000 has been given to the contest by Canada's centennial commission.

A centennial air rally official said in Victoria a total of $350,000 is needed to finance the flight. A portion of the money will come from the $100 pilot entrance fees, and the remainder will be sought from industry.

Some $200,000 will be used to assist amateur pilots rent planes which rent for approximately $18 an hour.

Prizes will be awarded for three classes of pilots, with marks being given for flight planning, log-keeping and accuracy of estimated times of arrival.

Plans call for planes to put down at most major airports enroute to Victoria.

The Victoria centennial committee will co-sponsor three days of activity for the visiting pilots at Patricia Bay airport.

Study and Work Spurs Native Son

When Evan Oakley was a boy he had more fun than most getting to school. He took one of his bicycles and coast all the way down from the Malahat summit to Langford.

That was the second school he attended. Vancouver-born, he lived next at Shawinigan Lake next when with his wife, also a Victoria teacher, he went to England. There he took one of two vacancies at a London school for boys in their mid-teens who were heading for vocational education. Clue to the word hectic: during his year there the second vacancy was filled by 11 teachers, one of whom lasted from 9 a.m. until morning recess.

NAMED PRINCIPAL

Returning to Victoria he became vice-principal at Oaklands under Norman Forbes for three years before being named Burnside principal six years ago.

During nine years of summer and night school he acquired his university degree, majoring in history and geography. Not surprisingly, he still enjoys teaching social studies, along with mathematics and PE.

One of his great enjoyments today is to have former pupils drop in for a visit and tell him what and how they're doing with their lives.

NEW CANADIANS

This is perhaps particularly true at Burnside, where the school population includes families coming from East India, Portugal, Denmark, Italy and the Ukraine.

Now he and his wife are bringing up their own family — two boys, the older in kindergarten at Cadboro Bay.

Two sports claim a Mon's share of his spare time. He is an avid golfer and likes to curl in the winter months. — E.M.S.

Early Atlantic Crossing Just Job

VANCOUVER (CP)—Three aircraft headed across the Atlantic and only one completed the trip — a four-engined biplane guided in 1919 by navigator Walter Hinton.

The plane made the trip one month ahead of the famed Sir John Alcock and Sir Arthur Brown, but was not non-stop.

like that of the Englishmen, Mr. Hinton recalled in an interview Wednesday.

He arrived in Vancouver aboard the ocean liner Canberra on a world cruise.

Mr. Hinton recalled that the United States Navy plane NC-4 was commanded by Lieut. Cmdr. A. C. Reed and was the only one of the three 12-400-wingspan craft that took off together to make the crossing.

"The NC-4 (Hinton's plane) flew from Rockaway Beach to Trepassey, a distance of 1,140 miles, without incident."

"We didn't look at the trip across the Atlantic as an adventure. It was an assigned duty."

Officer Training to Change?

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer told the Commons Wednesday he soon will announce a new policy on officer training of university students.

He said the defence department has been discussing changes in existing programs with representatives of the Canadian Association of Universities and Colleges.

At present university students may enter either the reserve or regular forces. In the first case they join regular units for three summers and are not bound to any further service.

The second group receives tuition and monthly allowances at college, in return for a commitment of summer service and a minimum number of years as regular officers in the forces after graduation.

Mr. Hellyer was replying to Gordon Churchill, a former Conservative defence minister, who asked whether it was the government's intention to drop the Canadian Officer Training Corps, the permanent force plan.

Mr. Churchill said the forces would be well advised to continue drawing on the universities for officers in view of the minister's "purge" of senior military advisers.

Bruch on World Woes

'We Must Explore'

TRAIL (CP)—Herb Bruch, national leader of the Social Credit Party, said Wednesday Canada must become an example for the world of responsible free enterprise.

"This country," he told a service club meeting, "is being increasingly called on for advice in international affairs, and must meet the challenge."

But Mr. Bruch said Canadians are living in an era of irresponsibility. He urged this trend be reversed, especially at the parliamentary level.

Mr. Bruch also commented on a recent statement by Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, former director-general of the United Nations Technical Assistance Administration regarding the prospect of mass contraception as a population explosion.

"We must explore the productive capacities of the world," he said, "before exploring mass sterilization."

New Safety-Pack helps to Protect your child against A.S.A. overdose

When given by adults as directed, A.S.A. anti-pain tablets are effective to reduce children's fever, relieve minor pains, ease certain cold symptoms. But doctors will tell you that if your child gets hold of a bottle and takes too many A.S.A. tablets, the results can be serious.

What can you do about this? Get Expirote in the new Safety-Pack scientifically designed to help prevent accidental overdose of A.S.A. Each tablet (pre-measured 1 1/2 grain exact dose) is individually sealed in a protective strip that's easy for you—but difficult for your child—to open.

Don't take chances. Depend on Expirote A.S.A. for fast pain relief plus a soothing ingredient to help prevent stomach upset. Ask your doctor about flavored, easy-to-take Expirote in new safety-package.

AT FIRST AID COUNTERS

You'll be sorry to hear about your bathtub.

THE CAULKING IS CRACKED, YOU KNOW. (Caulking! The stuff that seals your tub to the walls and floor.) Who cracked it? Probably you. Being a lady, you were likely the first one to use it. And the moment you filled it with water and stepped in, the weight caused it to pull, ever so slightly, away from the wall, cracking the caulking compound all around the tub. Now don't think it's because they aren't caulking bathtubs the way they used to. They are. That's the trouble.

THE YEARS TO COME
And it's the type of trouble that can do nothing but get worse. Take a look at your tub. See the cracks where it joins to the wall and the floor? They're probably unsightly enough now, but think what it will look like when they widen. And some of the pieces fall out. Dirt will gather in there. And when you shower, it will seep out and streak the tub. (Ugly.) Water will get in there. And soon the whole wall and floor area will start to get rotten. (Expensive.)

So what can you do? Wait until it gets so bad that it has to be fixed? And then start the whole process over again? That doesn't make much sense. The problem is in the caulking compound. Up until now most of them have been made of plaster. And when your tub makes its first move, the compound cracks. Because it's not flexible.

SILICONE RUBBER BATHTUB CAULK BY DOW CORNING
That was until Silicone Rubber Bathtub Caulk by Dow Corning. It's flexible. It's made of silicones. It won't shrink, crack or crumble. It seals better than a plaster caulk. (And sealing is the only reason for caulking in the first place.) It's a pure white, and it stays that way forever. (Your plaster caulk is probably yellowed already.) It applies with perfect smoothness and evenness. (Dirt will gather even in uncracked plaster caulk because of the rough surface.) In short, it enables you to give your tub a solid, permanent, waterproof seal that looks as if it were applied by a professional.

IT'S YOUR ROOM

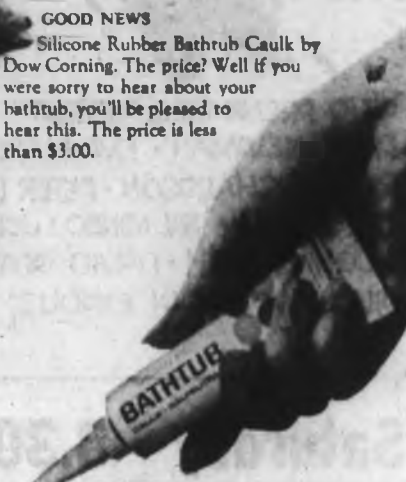

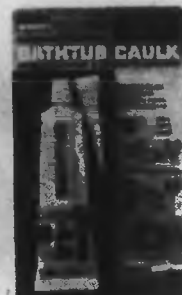

If you're a woman who takes pride in her bathroom, (and what room expresses your feminine tastes so completely), you would likely prefer to have the tub re-caulked with Silicone Rubber. So why don't you? If you can squeeze a tube of toothpaste you can do it yourself. In about eight minutes.

IT'S UP TO YOU

Next time you're making your shopping list and thinking of what the house and family need, think of what your bathroom needs. And then buy it where you shop. At the supermarket. Or the hardware store.

GOOD NEWS

Silicone Rubber Bathtub Caulk by Dow Corning. The price? Well if you were sorry to hear about your bathtub, you'll be pleased to hear this. The price is less than $3.00.

Hero Who Saved Eight from Crash 'Had No Friends' When on Bench

NANAIMO—When his friend the mayor appeared before him on a speeding charge, Lionel Beevor-Potts commented, "A magistrate on the bench has no friends," and promptly fined the civic dignitary for his offence.

"He's strict but he's fair," said then-mayor George Mink of Nanaimo, after he dug deep and paid the fine.

The strict-but-fair man carried on a tradition of law founded by his father in 1915.

In 1965 "The Beevor" left his court, commenting "Twenty years on a bench is a long time. I'm going to quit while I'm young enough to enjoy life."

He died in hospital at Vancouver Wednesday.

Mr. Beevor-Potts was a lawyer who made the punishment fit the crime.

In 1947, when a 17-year-old boy admitted destroying a fence around a school at Cedar, Magistrate Beevor-Potts fined him $1, and ordered him to rebuild the fence by his own labor.

When a group of young boys, aged 11 to 14, took $265 worth of soft drinks from a bottling plant, the magistrate made them work to repay the cost of the goods within one year.

He was unorthodox. His famous order to a prisoner to get his hair cut before his case could be heard was raised by a horrified MLA in the legislature.

When a Nanaimo alderman suggested boys escaping from Brannan Lake were "getting under his skin," Magistrate Beevor-Potts said the alderman's remarks were "foolish."

He fought hard for increased facilities for handling juvenile offenders, and taking some of the pressure off crowded Brannan Lake.

When a 23-year-old married man was convicted on four burglary charges, an RCMP prosecutor asked for a stiff sentence for the man.

But when the prisoner told the magistrate he had "learned his lesson," Mr. Beevor-Potts gave him a suspended sentence.

The shocked prosecutor argued vigorously, but the magistrate remained unmoved, and the young man went home to his family.

Mr. Beevor-Potts was born in Nanaimo May 31, 1894. He was educated in Nanaimo schools and at University School, Victoria.

He was studying law with his father when the war broke out in 1914. He went to Sandhurst, was granted a commission in South Wales Borderers, and went to France in 1915.

He was awarded the Military Cross and was mentioned in dispatches, before being invalided to England.

He was sent to Mesopotamia, and after a bit of string-pulling he was soon back in action, flying over the front lines against the Turks, earning his observer's wings.

He continued flying after the war ended, with the army of occupation of Cologne.

He went to India with the South Wales Borderers, but he didn't like the life much.

"India was a fine place if you had lots of money. I hadn't."

He was called to the bar in 1922, and practised law until 1939, when he joined Canadian Scottish and became officer commanding of "A" Company, until the air force accepted him in 1941.

He was awarded the MBE for leading a rescue party that hauled eight men from flaming wreckage of a crashed transport plane at Port Hardy. He succeeded his father as magistrate in 1945.

Mr. Beevor-Potts was a trout fisherman and a keen gardener.

Ottawa Works in Mysterious Ways . . .

This mailbox lives in the middle of the road. And that's where it will continue to stand, until someone finds big enough shears to snip federal red tape. On Walbank Road in Wellington, Alexander

Thompson gets his mail from the midst of the thoroughfare. Anybody can build a road, but federal regulations are strict about ordinary mortals not moving mailboxes. — (Agnes Flett)

Iran Crash Kills 23

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — An Iranian military transport plane carrying vacationing airmen and their dependents exploded in flight—apparently after being struck by lightning—and crashed, killing all 23 aboard.

Eight women and children were in the group flying to Tehran from a vacation in Shiraz.

Board Shocked by Long Lines at Nanaimo

Ten-Minute Lunch for Students

NANAIMO — Many junior high school students are only getting a 10-minute lunch break.

This was the information given to the school board Wednesday night by cafeteria chairman Doris Menard in her report.

Students at John Baraby junior high school go to lunch in two shifts during the lunch hour.

To facilitate serving, some students help out in the kitchen but this still results in a long lineup, she said.

AGREEMENT

There is a two-shift arrangement whereby Grade 8s have the first half-hour and Grade 9s and 10s have the following half-hour.

The lineups remain with students returning to the tables with only 10 minutes to eat.

Some students have started to bring their own lunch.

Others have requested permission to go home for lunch or to leave the grounds to eat elsewhere.

One student apparently doesn't bother — he was seen eating his lunch on the way home after school.

ALL SHOCKED

All members of the board were shocked at the information.

"These kids have got to have sufficient time to eat their lunch," said Dr. Roy McWilliam.

The board passed the motion for the cafeteria chairman to further investigate the situation and the introduction of a two-hour lunch break.

Woodlands junior high school has this arrangement and the board was told the students are funnelled through on a three-shift basis, giving 40 minutes instead of 30 for serving and eating.

There is no possibility of splitting the lineup at John Baraby School.

School superintendent, Harley Abbott, said, "We can make more use of activity rooms."

In connection with a recommendation by physical education supervisor Bruce Wallace.

Mr. Wallace suggested that referendums be held to provide more of the rooms, "because more than half of the schools are without them and of the schools with them, four could be doubled in space."

"As time goes by we're getting shorter and shorter of activity rooms," he added.

He suggested the board seriously consider Mr. Wallace's proposal.

Another proposal by Mr. Wallace was accepted.

It calls for $1,000 to be set aside for an aquatic program.

Mr. Wallace suggested that Grade 2 and 3 pupils be started in the program to acquire basic skills and fundamental knowledge of the water.

Two Men Spotted 'Fleeing Hotel'

CUMBERLAND — Officials are investigating a report that two young men were seen running from the Waverly Hotel, as fire broke out at the historic building.

Reports indicated one young man ran from the front of the hotel, another from the back.

Fire appeared to break out at the same time at front and back of the building.

The blaze left the Waverly a water-soaked, black ruin. The fire broke out at 2 a.m. Wednesday.

The Waverly was on Dunsmuir, near the corner of First Street.

It was owned by Claude Jordan.

Since taking over the ownership, Mr. Jordan had spent a considerable sum on renovations and general clean-up of the premises and its surrounding area.

The hotel is believed to have been built in the late 1890s and is the third hotel to burn in 17 years. The first to go was the Union, owned by Canadian Collieries Dunsmuir Ltd., also used as a boarding home, and more recently the Victoria.

All residents left the Waverly safely, but one unidentified man had to be brought down from the second floor by firemen using a ladder.

Dense smoke hampered firemen in efforts to quell the blaze. At times the road at the side and back of the building were completely black. Firemen battled until nearly dawn to bring the stubborn blaze under control.

The spectacular night fire brought out many Cumberland and area residents who stayed to watch another piece of local history die.

Kyuquot Mail Will Come Through Sky

KYUQUOT — The mails must get through, and starting May 1, they will be getting through on time.

All mail to this village will be brought in by an air service of B.C. Airlines out of Campbell River.

This will replace the present service of first class mail being brought in by air, and all other mail coming in on the weekly boat service.

The new system will operate Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

While this will mean greatly improved service, it may also mean some first class mail will be slightly slower than when it came straight from Vancouver.

Residents believe the loss of the mail contract by the water travel firm means it is less likely than ever that the wharf, built mainly for use by the ship, will ever be used.

Egg Producers Seek Increase

SURREY (CP)—Fraser Valley egg producers are seeking provincial legislation to increase retail egg prices by eight to 10 cents a dozen. They are circulating a petition asking for cabinet action on their demand for establishment of an egg board, a spokesman said.

Garden Notes

Currant Events

By M. V. CHESNUT

Some of our garden pests are like scarlet fever or the mumps — you may get them, but chances are you won't. Others are more like the virus of the common cold — they're around all the time, and you're almost sure to get them unless you do something about it.

Among these ever-present pests I would include the aphid, carrot fly, onion maggot, flea beetle and the currant fruit fly. This last pest is becoming so common hereabouts that it is almost impossible to grow clean currants or gooseberries unless preventive measures are taken. Every summer I get literally hundreds of letters complaining about wormy berries, and several of my readers have told me they intend to scrap their bushes if they get one more year of useless, maggoty fruit.

It would be a shame to destroy perfectly good currant and gooseberry bushes, for the situation isn't difficult to control once the habits of the pest are known and understood, and it isn't at all difficult to grow a crop of clean, wormless fruit.

The culprit is the currant fruit fly, about the size of a small housefly but yellow in color. These saboteurs hiber-nate through the winter in the soil under your bushes where the wormy fruit fell last summer. They will start emerging soon and will spend about 10 days in the serious business of courtship and mating.

The actual attack upon our currant and gooseberry bushes takes place about the time the lilacs bloom. At this time, the blossoms on our fruit bushes are almost finished and the petals are falling freely to the ground.

Mama fruit fly, having found a mate, sharpens up her hypodermic egg-laying dingers and uses it to puncture a tiny, newly formed green berry and deposits an egg deep in the heart of the fruit. Working briskly from dawn to dusk, she can inject thousands of embryo currants or gooseberries without ever going back to papa fruit fly to pick up another load of eggs.

The eggs hatch out in about a week, and the newborn maggot starts immediately to feed upon the insides of the developing berry. He lives there happily, secure and protected from any sprays or dusts, until the berry falls to the ground, whereupon he enters the soil to await the time when he will emerge as an adult flying insect.

What can we do about it? I favor a two-pronged attack, carefully timed to do Mr. and Mrs. Fruit Fly a bit of no good.

First, I use a good soil insecticide, working it into the top two inches of soil under the bushes. For this you can take your choice of chlordane dust, diazinon, cutworm dust, bulb dust or DDT, and its purpose is to catch a lot of flies before they emerge from the ground and before their biological urge fills them full of maggot eggs. This soil dust can go in any time before the bushes come into bloom.

This soil treatment kills only your own homegrown crop of fruit flies and does nothing whatever to protect you bushes from egg-laying flies coming in from a neighbor's garden. For these, we can set up a booby trap, coating the leaves and fruit with knockout drops to kill Mrs. Fruit Fly on contact.

For this spraying, methoxychlor does about the best job, dissolving six teaspoons of the wettable powder in one gallon of water and adding a tablespoonful of dishwashing detergent to make the spray stick. Two applications are needed, the first toward the end of the blossoming period when most of the petals have fallen, and again 10 days later.

ART BUCHWALD Slants It for LBJ

All News Is Good News

WASHINGTON — Both President Johnson and Vice President Hubert Humphrey have been bitterly complaining lately over the lack of good news being reported by American newspapers.

They have both contended that the American image is being hurt abroad because all people have been reading lately is the bad news about United States.

They certainly have a point, and every responsible newspaper is now hiring a "good news" editor who is responsible for getting as much good news in the paper as possible. So far they've had a hard time ferreting out many good news stories, but it isn't for lack of trying. Here are some of the kinds of stories they're looking for.

HOUSTON, Tex. — Private Muhammad Ali, otherwise known as Cassius Clay, was awarded the good conduct medal today after being in the U.S. Army for only two weeks. Private Muhammad said, "All I want to be is a good soldier." Asked if he missed fighting for the world heavyweight championship, Private Muhammad said, "I'd rather fight the Viet Cong any day."

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Gov. Lurleen Wallace cut the 300th ribbon today to open another integrated school in Alabama. The governor said: "I won't rest until every school in Alabama is completely free of discrimination, but I don't think I could have done it without the support of my husband George and the good people of the State of Alabama."

DETROIT, Mich. — Ralph Nader announced today that every new model car coming off the assembly line this year was completely safe and accident-proof. He told the American Society of Automobile Manufacturers that he was proud of the way they had accepted all his safety suggestions.

"He particularly cited the good faith of General Motors for their co-operation during the past year. The manufacturers presented Mr. Nader with their 'man of the year' award in gratitude for his pointing out their shortcomings to the American consumer."

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Rifle Association called for strong legislation this week to prevent guns from getting into the hands of an unsuspecting public. A spokesman for the organization said:

"Guns in themselves are dangerous and should only be handled by the few discriminating people who are experienced with them. The hackneyed argument for the ownership of guns goes back to the Constitution, but it is a faulty one, and if we can't stop people from buying guns, then the Constitution should be changed."

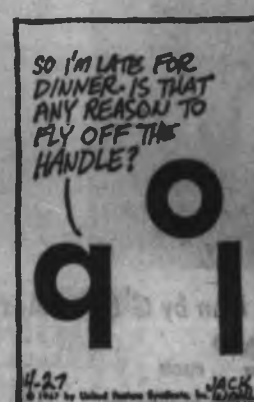

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — See rotary of State Dean Rusk told the Harvard graduating class this morning that the United States had made many mistakes in the handling of the Vietnam war, and that he could see why Hanoi didn't want to go to the conference table at this time.

"He said he thought the anti-war demonstrations as well as the speeches by Sen. Fulbright and Sen. Kennedy were very helpful in bringing about a peaceful settlement of the conflict and he only wished more people would speak out against the war. The Harvard students threw flowers in front of the Secretary's limousine as he left the campus."

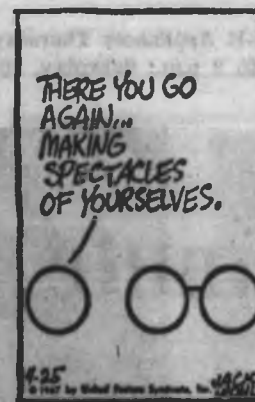

LANGLEY, Va. — The CIA announced today that it was giving up its role as an espionage organization and would devote its efforts in the future to medical research. In explaining the agency's decision Richard Helms told newspapermen, "Soying is a dirty business and the CIA wants no part of it."

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Johnson called a press conference today and attached the press for printing only the good news coming out of Washington. He pointed out that because there was no bad news being reported, the public was interpreting his good news as bad news. Merriman Smith said, "Thank you, Mr. President."

WOHL

Love Only $1.49!

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

Romantic love which is so extravagantly overdone as the basis for marriage, in films, novels, television, magazines and plays, is often a major cause for parent-child conflict. We have been nurtured so long on the ideas of democratic family life that from childhood on our young people passionately believe that they are the real decision-makers. Parents serve only as chairmen of our "house committees" — they cannot vote on crucial matters.

To this anomaly there has now been added the almost irrepressible notion that "falling in love" is purely a personal affair, and not a family matter at all. As a result, there now exists a very high degree of improbability that parents might have anything at all to say in connection with their children's choice of mates. Such intervention would be considered a most insensitive and abhorrent intrusion on privacy.

But to blame false notions of love for this unhappy state of affairs? It is true that long before the problem of marriage plagues our family circle, our children have already been made to believe that they are the monarchs. In most of our homes, the child does what it wants, and parents, too, do what their child wants.

But there is a close connection between our misguided theories of love and the disgruntled, dethroned parents of our time — the relationship may not be one of cause-and-effect, but it is there, nevertheless.

Listen to this conversation which can be picked up these days, at almost any market-research meeting: "Love makes the world go round. People are hungry for it! They'll buy it in packages if we can mass-market it — and we can! Whether we're selling breakfast cereals, floor polish, television sets, mop mops or automobiles, we'll sell more of these if we remember that what we are really doing is selling love in bright, gay and easy-to-reach-for packages."

To this can be added an even "profounder philosophy" — these unspoken, but ever-present market motivations: "What is love but the search for pleasure, the desire for physical satisfaction and gratification. What parent would want to be guilty of denying love to his child when he can buy it neatly ribboned for $1.49?"

We're not selling dolls. We're selling love! And when we sell automobiles, we're selling love, too! "Never advertise a car without a glamorous woman in the picture! Romance sells it! Women will think of their men as shining knights coveting with their charming damsels. For men — The car is a woman; for women it is a man!"

While this approach may help the experts sell more products, it's a double-edged sword succeeds in tearing apart the togetherness of the spirit — not the commercial kind that helps sell television sets. We love our children blindly when we confuse love with physical satisfaction. We make them so dependent upon physical gratification that they will forever wrongly identify love only with what affords them sensual satisfaction.

And the day comes when parents no longer have enough of these satisfactions to offer, their old packages of love cannot compete with the fresher, newer, more tantalizing beauties of romantic love. Then "romance" must win out despite parental advice or guidance.

Parents wonder why their "love" for their children did not lead to a deeper involvement in their lives — did not, at the family's crucial moments, join them together to share in the vital decision. It is their "love" which has destroyed any such possibility. At the signal moment, when true love — which is shared concern — would have won a victory, they stand waiting in the wings, with no role to play.

Bail Granted On Remand

Courtroom Parade

Three Victoria men charged with robbery with violence were remanded until April 25 to choose the form of trial when they appeared in central magistrate's court Wednesday before Magistrate J. A. Byers.

Ronald May, 23, and Gerald Harvey, 19, both of 46 South Turner, and James Erdman, 21, of 1156 May, were charged following a jewelry store robbery April 11.

In the robbery Mrs. Queen Victoria Wilkins, 60, suffered severe head wounds in an attack by three men when she was alone in Hebden's Jewelry Store, 1008 Blanshard.

SET AT $2,000

The robbers took $50 in cash and two watches valued at $150 each.

Harvey was granted $2,500 bail. May made no request for bail, and Erdman's defence counsel had received no instruction from his client about bail.

Collecting souvenirs proved expensive for Francis McEntree of HMCS Columbia when he was fined $25 on each of two counts of theft under $50.

Court was told the accused took a $20 vase and four paintings from a Ganges hotel and a $25 picture from a motel.

Magistrate Byers sentenced Gordon McKay, 28, of Florence Lake Road, to a 12-month term after he was convicted at an earlier hearing of a charge of false pretences.

"It would seem that writing beques is becoming quite a habit with you," the magistrate said as he imposed the sentence.

Court was told the accused had been convicted previously on charges of false pretences.

Three youths were fined $35 each after pleading guilty to separate charges of being minors in possession of liquor. Fined were John Balmer Jr., 18, 3129 Admirals; Michael Smilowski, 19, of 207 Burnside; Brian Thickett, 18, of 2845 Bryn Mawr Road.

Emile Wilson, 1660 Old Island Highway, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving and was fined $300 and his driver's licence was recommended to be suspended for four months.

Court was told the accused was chased by police on Esquimalt streets at speeds up to 50 miles an hour about 2 a.m. Wednesday, and was forced to stop by another police car blocking the road. He gave a breathalyzer reading of .14 per cent.

Fined in traffic court for careless driving were: Elizabeth Lamber, 1093 Gosper Crescent, $30; Ernest Medland, 1835 Taylor, $35; Ralph Ovinge of Prince George, $35; Norman Thomas, 350 Douglas, $40.

Conciliation

Firemen Granted Raises

Saanich firefighters have been granted a 7-per-cent pay increase and some employment terms on a one-year basis, on the recommendation of conciliation officer J. C. Sherlock.

The B.C. labor department said the firemen will be given the 7 per cent across the board; telephone operators and clerks will be given 3 per cent; incumbent employees will be given the opportunity to become firemen if they qualify by December, 1967, and new telephone operators and clerks will be classified in the same pay scale as police cadets.

DAIRYMEN

In other conciliation settlement, the Canadian Linen Supply Co. and the Milk Sales Drivers and Dairy Employees' Union, Local 464, agreed on a three-year contract, with weekly increases of $7, $8 and $9 in each year.

The Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper-hangers of America Local 1183 has been certified in the painting and decorating firm of William S. Parsons, 1201 Roslyn.

Other certifications granted are: Construction and General Laborers' Union Local 1003, in Greenbank Designs Contracts Division Ltd.; Sheet Metal Workers' International Association Local 276, in Universal Sheet Metal; Playstead Sheet Metal and Smith-Anderson Co. Ltd.

FIND FOR UNION

The Victoria Construction Workers Association, Local 64, in B.C. Gypsum Dry-Wall Systems Ltd.

In a dispute between C and Q Builders of Victoria, and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local 1598, the Labor Relations Board found for the union.

The board ordered the building firm to engage only subcontractors who employed union members in carpentry or millwork.

Riches Shown In Color

In an illustrated talk "B.C. On the Move," Resources Minister Ray Williston took the members of the Victoria Canadian Club on a scenic tour over the vast expanse of the province Wednesday.

Using colored slides to amplify his statements, the minister outlined the scope of the logging industry, mining, fishing and the great development of the province's power resources.

Sides were shown demonstrating the growth of the pulp and paper industry and the fast-moving development of the oil industry.

POWER PLENTIFUL
 The province is the greatest storehouse of water power in North America, said Mr. Williston, showing pictures of the construction of the dams at Portage Mountain, Arrow Lakes, Duncan Lake and Mica Creek.

Speaking of mining, Mr. Williston said that mineral concentrates are being shipped outside the province for smelting but, with the power surge forging ahead in B.C., this will not be for long.

Copters Speed Repairs

Repair missions to remote lights are being streamlined by the department of transport, using helicopter and dinghy.

District superintendent of lights Capt. William Eiley hailed the advance as an economy move, saying "this will be a great saving."

The coast guard's Alouette II helicopter will speed to the scene of the trouble, carrying technicians and a 10-foot inflatable rubber dinghy to transfer the repair crew from the helicopter to the light station.

Eventually, the department hopes to have helicopter pads at all stations, eliminating the dinghy entirely.

Teeners Sold Bill of Goods

By NANCY BROWN

Youngsters are being "squeezed out" of life itself, according to a Vancouver psychiatrist, Dr. Bennett Wong.

In a plenary session of the Child Welfare League of America conference at the Empress Hotel, he said these youngsters were disillusioned by the absurdities of an unrelenting, misunderstanding, self-righteous society.

Dr. Wong illustrated and punctuated his address on Myths and Mysteries of Being a Teen-ager with folk songs and guitar-playing by teen-agers.

PROPAGANDA

He said adults had relied on the major tenet "stay in school — don't be a dropout."

"This has got to be the most successful piece of propaganda ever to have been foisted on an unsuspecting generation."

"I have yet to meet a young person who somewhere in the levels of consciousness does not believe it to be a panacea."

"Those that stay in school, no matter how unhappy or confused they are becoming, retain a shred of hope that school will ultimately solve their problems in life."

FEAR FUTURE

"Those that leave school are beset by constant doubts about their personal worth and capabilities, acceptance by their families and society in general, and most of all have a great fear of the future."

"After creating the magical words 'stay in school,' our modern version of 'abracadabra,' we have been content to sit back and let our schools cope with the problem."

Adults, he said, trench in and demand conformity, simply because "we said so," putting the individual at war not only with society but also with himself.

"If no solution is foreseeable, anxiety builds up to the breaking point, and in despair, the youngster may drop out not only of school but of life itself."

Adults must learn from the new generation and try to seek methods to help it, said Dr. Wong.

Dr. Wong wondered if the newly-discovered power of the "now generation" will be properly harnessed and constructively directed.

"We adults fear a state of anarchy and, because of this, frequently react with suppression, which only strengthens the state of anarchy."

Here Come Questions But Who Has Answers?

Why must a teenager spend two hours studying each night if he can get passing marks without doing so?

Dr. Bennett Wong, a Vancouver psychiatrist, says that's one of the questions parents, teachers and policemen will have to answer if they want youth to develop healthy ideas.

Dr. Wong, who is noted for his ability to define the adolescent to adults, was speaking to the Child Welfare Conference in Victoria this week.

Other questions which teenagers will have to have answered:

Why must he go to bed early when there is no school next day?

Why can't he sleep in until noon when there is nothing else to do?

Why can't they indulge in sexual intercourse when they are careful to use contraceptives?

Why can't they steal if they never get caught?

Why shouldn't they lie if it makes other people feel better and makes life so much less complicated?

Why can't they wear their hair long, their clothes tight, their skirts short and their colors bright when other kids like it as much as themselves?

And That's Just Part

MODERN HISTORY PROVES THE BIBLE TRUE

A free Bible address 7:45 p.m., April 20, at the Christadelphian Hall, Kings at Blanshard (D.V.). Where Mr. M. D. Stewart, Southern Californian teacher and lecturer, will be guest speaker.

Salmon, Falcon Help 'Sell' B.C.

Two salmon and a falcon did their bit last week to lure Californians north to B.C. this summer.

So did a party of 40 B.C. government and travel industry people who spent a week selling the province in southern California, reported Travel Industry Minister Kierman on Wednesday after his return from the annual junket.

Attorney-General Bonner and Education Minister Peterson joined the group, making appearances on television and before service clubs.

DOOR PRIZES

The party visited Los Angeles, San Diego and Palm Springs, the desert retreat which is Victoria's unofficial "sister city."

In San Diego the British Columbians hosted a dinner for travel agents and gave two salmon as door prizes.

To the San Diego zoo they presented a rare Peal's falcon brought from the Queen Charlotte Islands.

MET STARS

At affairs in Los Angeles they met Olivia DeHavilland, Robert Vaughn (the Man from U.N.C.L.E.) and Quebec-born Glenn Ford.

The money spent on the trip was well worth it, in Mr. Kierman's opinion.

"It cost about $20,000, or approximately the cost of two pages in the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner," he said.

B.C. draws about one-quarter of its annual $200,000,000 tourist business from California, said the minister.

If you had a car that didn't break so often, you wouldn't be broke so often.

Volvos are built so strong they're driven an average of eleven years in Sweden where there are no speed limits on the highways and over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads.

Come in and drive a Volvo Canadian. You'll find it's more than just a strong car. Volvo out-accelerates every other compact in its class and still gets over 30 miles to the gallon, even with automatic transmission.

Surveyor Snapping

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor III, packing a tiny shovel to scoop moon dust, settled softly on a broad lunar plain Wednesday and began televising pictures of a possible astronaut landing site.

The first photos, sent to earth after the landing in the dry Ocean of Storms, were of the spidery spacecraft itself. They showed it apparently in good condition.

Surveyor III, braking on tangles of fire, planted its three legs on the moon's surface at 4:04 p.m. PST after a 65-hour, 217,000-mile flight from Cape Kennedy.

It was expected to return hundreds of photos of terrain, then begin soil analyses with a toy-like shovel at the end of a spindly arm.

It appears on the way to duplicating the success of Surveyor I, which made the first U.S. soft moon-landing last June and returned thousands of pictures.

The first pictures from Surveyor III had 200 scan lines — giving about one-third the detail of a home TV set. Scheduled later were shots with 800 lines, yielding home-like quality.

Early shots were indistinct.

A laboratory spokesman said scientists were not particularly concerned, noting initial pictures for Surveyor I were unclear.

Scientists banked on teamwork between Surveyor III's shovel and camera to return the most detailed information yet on the strength and texture of the lunar surface.

The claw-like shovel is designed to scoop up soil and test it to determine texture and strength. From this they hope to find whether the moon's crust will support a manned landing craft.

OTTAWA (CP) — Emergency contingency plans are being drawn up for sending Canadian military personnel to Vietnam as part of any peacekeeping force which might be established there, a defence department spokesman said Wednesday night.

An external affairs department spokesman also said Canadian peacekeeping experience is being re-evaluated to determine what role Canada might play in Vietnam if terms of reference for the International Control Commission are changed. (See also Page 2.)

EGYPT, CYPRUS

Under present terms, which date from 1954, the Canada-Egypt-Poland commission has no authority to set up a peacekeeping force along the lines of the United Nations operations in Egypt and Cyprus.

Both spokesmen emphasized that the plans are for contingency purposes only — that is, to be put into effect if and when a need for a peacekeeping force in Vietnam is agreed upon by all parties concerned.

WORKING AT TOP SPEED
However, the defence department spokesman confirmed reports from other sources that the planning in that department has been undertaken on a crash basis.

Planning for Vietnam began last Tuesday after External Affairs Minister James Duffin said.

AIR CRASH KILLS 124

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI)

An airliner chartered by a Swiss travel agency crashed and exploded in flames early Thursday during a thunderstorm on this Mediterranean island. Authorities said 124 persons were killed.

Officials said there were six survivors, including a stewardess. All were severely injured.

The plane was returning to Zurich from an economy vacation trip to Asia. It carried 120 Swiss and German tourists and 10 crew members.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Airport officials quoted the pilot of the four-engine Bristol Britannia turbo-prop, a British-built plane, as saying it was struck by lightning as he approached Nicosia airport in darkness.

The pilot was instructed to make an emergency landing at a nearby airstrip, but the plane crashed into the side of a hill and exploded. Heavy rain and hail pelted the disaster area.

FAR-EASTERN TRIP

The plane was owned by Globe Air Co., a Zurich firm, and chartered by Hotelplan, a Swiss travel agency. It was returning to Zurich from a trip to Bangkok, Thailand, via Colombo and Bombay.

The plane had been scheduled to stop in Cairo for refueling, but it was diverted to Nicosia because of bad weather in the Egyptian capital.

SURVIVORS AIRLIFTED

Bits of wreckage and bodies were scattered over a wide area and rescue operations for the survivors were hampered by the rain and hail. The survivors were airlifted by helicopter to a hospital manned by the United Nations peacekeeping force on this troubled island, torn by strife between Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

Civil aviation officials sealed off the area and launched an investigation into the crash. A delegation of Swiss federal air office representatives and officials of Globe Air Co. left.

Buttle Dispute Settled — Tentatively

By BILL STAVDAL
Legislative Reporter

The Buttle Lake-Western Mines pollution dispute reached a tentative settlement Wednesday after a three-hour meeting in Victoria.

Three provincial cabinet ministers, mine officials and civic officials from Campbell River agreed to submit the issue to an independent survey and leave the final solution to the Pollution Control Board. A public hearing will be held by the Pollution Control Board after receipt of a study by Dr. George Langford of Toronto, according to the tentative agreement.

DEADLINE SET

The draft agreement must be ratified by 5 p.m. Friday by directors of Western Mines and by the Campbell River water board.

The issue concerns dumping of mine tailings into Myra Creek and the head of Buttle Lake, from which Campbell River draws its water.

The B.C. Appeal Court revoked Western Mines' permit to dump tailings on grounds that no public hearing on the matter had been held by the Pollution Control Board.

TEMPORARY BASIS

The mine has had its permits restored on a temporary basis, and until this week was preparing to take its case before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Wednesday's meeting in the legislative building was attended by Resources Minister Williston, Conservation Minister Klerman, and Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell, who is also a member of Comox riding.

From Campbell River came Reeve Kenneth McDonald; Stanley Jenson, chairman of the Campbell River water board; and

Running Block

One Safe, One Lost

NANAIMO — Search and rescue volunteers in five boats and using searchlights were probing Deepwater Bay early today for a missing man. A companion, Frank Dushenko, 45, Nanaimo, also in a 14-foot boat they were fishing from, when it overturned, was able to swim ashore.

Sargent's Priority:

Public Order — Then Rights

VANCOUVER (CP) — Retired Judge R. A. Sargent, heading a provincial royal commission on invasion of privacy, says society must relinquish some of its rights so citizens may live in well-ordered fashion.

The commissioner was commenting during discussion with a civil rights lawyer at Tuesday's hearing on whether police should be allowed to eavesdrop, electrically or otherwise.

Mr. Sargent suggested the absolute ban on bugging suggested in a brief by the B.C. Civil Liberties Association would hinder police in their fight against crime.

A proposal by the association that the term bugging be extended to cover someone hiding in a room to overhear a conversation would "very materially" help organized crime.

The brief, presented by association president Sidney Simons, urged an absolute ban on the use of eavesdropping devices by private detectives, police and law enforcement bodies, and immediate provincial legislation to protect the right of privacy actionable. It also called for elimination of the use in court of information obtained by such devices.

Air War Multiplies

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. air force jets battled swarms of Communist MIG interceptors in 17 separate encounters Wednesday and fought their way through to bomb targets south-east of the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi, the U.S. command reported today.

At least one MIG was shot down. There were no reports of U.S. planes being hit.

The raids 37 miles southeast of Hanoi followed heavy strikes against North Vietnam Tuesday in which U.S. pilots flew 145 missions, the second biggest aerial assault of the year.

Taking advantage of a break in the monsoon weather that has blanketed most of North Vietnam since last November, F105 Thunderchief jets knifed deep into Communist territory to raid a key power transmission station 44 miles northeast of the port of Haiphong.

The Communists sent up swarms of Russian-made MIG 17 jets to meet them.

Superior F4C Phantom jets flew cover for the Thunderchief pilots in the strikes against North Vietnam's industrial heartland.

The U.S. command said the pilot of a Thunderchief was credited with shooting one of the MIGs out of the sky. It was the 39th MIG to fall to U.S. guns since the air war began more than two years ago.

Church Weighs Common Law

200,000 Blessings?

HAMILTON (CP) — The United Church of Canada is considering special church services to give blessings to some of Canada's 200,000 common law marriages, a Hamilton minister said Tuesday.

Rev. H. N. Hillyer, spokesman for a group of Hamilton ministers working toward the change, said a morally-sound common law union is acceptable to God and should be publicly blessed by the church.

The division of congregational life and work of the United Church soon will study the feasibility of services that would provide church blessings on such relationships.

Mr. Hillyer, chairman of the committee of evangelism and social service at the Hamilton presbytery, said a formal service, "something like the blessing bestowed on other married couples," could remove the guilt feelings that often surround some morally-guilty marriages and prevent some people from being alienated from the church.

Common law couples usually are refused the sacraments, including baptism of children, Mr. Hillyer said.

The question of blessing common law marriages was defeated last year by a narrow vote in the Hamilton presbytery.

Party, Cake For Comox

COMOX — This community is now a town and to celebrate its coming-of-age party there was a birthday cake, dinner and presentation of medals.

The change in municipal status from village to town was also the occasion of Comox's 21st birthday.

Guests included Tom Barnett, MP, who presented centennial medals to pioneers, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell and Comox council members.

The dining room of the Elk Hotel was decorated with centennial flags and many pictures of Comox as it was many years ago.

Comox was incorporated as a village in January 1946 when its population stood at 631.

Today as a town its residents number more than 2,500.

Jack Noel was elected as first chairman of the board of commissioners, a position he held until the end of 1956 when R. D. Ellis was elected as chairman.

He has held that position until now when he assumed the title as mayor.

Past minutes of the town show the first board borrowed $1,000 to finance operations and C. S. Jensen was the village clerk. At the end of nine months the financial statement showed receipts of $5,335 and expenditure of $2,509. In 1962 expenditure amounted to $171,123.

The area has noted almost continual yearly progress from the time the old municipal hall was purchased from war assets. In 1953 a 150 to 3 vote saw the village withdraw from the Vancouver Union Library and set up its own library. Today circulation is 21,854 and there is an adult membership of 503.

Other milestones of progress were boundary extensions to the East and North in 1954 and '55.

Banquet And Bowls

NANAIMO — Ald. Jack Parker bowled the first ball in what was two days of fun.

Sons of Norway lodges from Surrey, Vancouver, Victoria, Port Alberni, and New Westminster competed for inter-lodge trophies in a tournament hosted by the Nanaimo lodge.

MAKE FRIENDS

"We came for something better than trophies — to meet old friends and make new ones," said Mrs. Francis Dramstad.

She got both.

The keynote of friendship was struck by Ald. Parker before he bowled the opening strike in street shoes.

"I hope we never get so big (Nanaimo City) that we cannot properly welcome you to Nanaimo," he said.

DANCING

After the first night's bowling, Saturday, the lodges met in the Son Hall on Albert Street and celebrated being together at a dance.

Sunday, before the awards were presented, a smorgasbord dinner, as only Scandinavians can prepare, was enjoyed amid gay decorations and gay spirits.

The lodge members evidenced the heartiness for which their race has always been noted.

GALETTY AND GUSTO

They opened Sunday banquet by singing the Canadian anthem with a gusto that is too seldom heard — and they knew the words.

The spirit of the lodge is love of Canada, and loving remembrance of their homeland is secondary.

FROM MAINLAND

The District 7 trophy, high men's average, high women's average three-game total, high man's single and high men's team total were taken to their Viking lodge.

Host lodge, North Star, got an award it has been after for years, the District 2 trophy.

RUNNER UP

However, since the districts have been changed, that trophy is no longer for first place, but for runner-up.

It also took: Women's high average, women's high single, men's high three-game total and women's high team total.

Surrey took men's high three.

construction of a new firehall in 1957, 1961 passage of a bylaw for sewer installation which by July 1962 saw approximately 85 per cent of the residents connected.

In 1962 a new municipal hall and health centre was built and the following year a recreation commission was formed which has seen its dream fulfilled with construction of a recreation complex as the town's centennial project. In September of this year the final payment of debentures issued by the village will be paid.

Present council members are Mayor R. D. Ellis, aldermen L. R. Burchell, R. D. Graham, J. C. Holmes and J. N. Percy.

Pioneers who received medals at the dinner are:

● Mrs. Myra Thomson, who was born in 1886, is one of the 15 children born to the later Mr. and Mrs. Sam Cliffe.

● William Kirby, who was born in England and when partial consolidation of the Comox, Nob Hill and Lazo schools took place in 1927, he purchased a school bus and transported school children for the next 21 years.

● Robert Martin, who was born on Gabriola Island in 1884.

● Walter R. Pritchard, who is the eldest son of the later Mr. and Mrs. Archie Pritchard and born in 1890. Mr. Pritchard received his elementary education at the small school on Anderson Road and attended Cumberland High School.

● John Pritchard, who was born in the same house as his brother.

● Mrs. Harriet Zella Spencer, a fourth generation Canadian from Lower Truro, N.S., who is well known on the Prairies where she wrote a newspaper column for 20 years under the by-line H. Zella Spencer.

● John William Carthew, a retired engineer.

● Mrs. Ethel May Naylor, whose father and grandfather were among the first settlers in Deloraine, Man., was born in 1884. Her mother lived to be 101.

● William H. McLellan, who moved to Cumberland in 1888 to work in the mines during the First World War. He was a member of the Cumberland police force and travelled by bicycle and boat to carry out his duties in Royston, Denman and on Hornby Island. He celebrated his 86th birthday on Saturday.

● Louis H. Garnett, whose father drove by team and wagon from Winnipeg to Picher Creek, Alta., in 1879.

● Mrs. Edith T. Denny, whose father, Richard J. Smith, bought 177 acres at Little River in 1910.

● George Hamilton Matheson, a First World War veteran, who was born in Ayr, Ont., in 1891.

● Mrs. Ethel J. Cameron, who was born in County Grey, Ont., in 1891.

● The last medalion to be presented was to the late Robert Ernest Turnbull. Mr. Turnbull served in The Essex War, he was a teacher in Manitoba and in the North West Territories, a city police court magistrate in Regina, a lawyer and a King's Councillor.

Eligible to receive centennial medalions, but unable to be there, were Jonathan Beech, Charlotte A. Swain, Mary E. Williams, Grace J. McNeill, John McPhee and A. J. Thomas. Their medalions will be presented later.

Good Old Days Precede Fall Fairs on Island

Eleven B.C. exhibitions and fall fairs will be held on Vancouver Island in August and September and 35 will be held on the mainland.

The 21st Victoria Jaycee Fair will be the first between May 15 and 20, at the Curling Rink. The fair has a $60,000 budget and its centennial theme is The Good Old Days.

Port Alberni

Indian Chief 'Sheepish'

PORT ALBERNI — An Indian chief had the wool pulled over his eyes at a reception in the Port Alberni Friendship Centre.

The honored guest was Jack Peter, hereditary chief of the Ojibwa. The wool was in a hand knitted sweater of native design, in appreciation of all his work for the native people of the area.

SECRET AFFAIR

To keep the whole thing a secret, the committee let it be known that members of the Friendship Centre were inviting the Old Age Pensioners among their own people, and the executive of the local Old Age Pensioners group, to a dinner and entertainment in the centre.

"They caught me flat-footed," Mr. Peter admitted, but public appreciation of his efforts more than made up for all the trials he has run into during creation of the Friendship Centre.

DANCING

Speeches and entertainment by the dancers from the Indian Residential School, trained by George Ortel, rounded out the evening.

Sign of the Times?

NANAIMO — The Standard Oil silhouette is still under attack.

At a recent advisory planning commission meeting, Standard Oil Company assistant district sales manager, W. H. Fraser said the company image as represented by its internationally famous silhouette would not likely be changed.

Tuesday, Gino Sedola maintained that the style of the building should be different from what the company proposes.

He wants an architectural design more befitting the surrounding area, on the Chestnut Street "Burnip property" near the highway.

He said he feels the commission's duty is, in part, to strive for a more beautiful city, with integrated designs of beauty.

The commission will contact the company stating the original proposals of: maintaining aesthetic visual quality by screening the area from nearby residences with trees and shrubs; maintaining the area as a service station only (no used cars); and enquiring about the offer to turn over a section of the land at the rear of the property to the city for playground use for a nominal sum of one dollar.

Residents for the area were represented by Bus Matthews and Douglas Bell.

They were fearful that a "dog and suds" drive-in would be established there as well.

The nearby school children, and those who walk past on their way to Woodland Junior high school "are too important," they said.

The commission assured them that such use was not intended, nor would it be permitted.

Bigger Duncan Controversial

COBBLE HILL — Duncan's plans to extend boundaries southward will run into trouble from unhappy ratepayers in the unorganized areas.

Ratepayers' official George Bonner, has taken the initial step toward getting an injunction against the city's proposal.

The land the city plans to incorporate into its boundaries under section 21 of the Municipal Act includes Eagle Heights, Langtry Road area, Kokishah, golf course, Allenby Road areas, and part of Cowichan Bay.

Mr. Bonner, a resident of Cobble Hill since 1912, said, "The Municipal Act was not made to be manipulated in this manner."

"The unorganized territories have the right to grow."

Cobble Hill is part of unorganized South Cowichan.

It is also included in Hospital District 19, as well as the land

With Whitey Clicking Yankees Snatch Lead

St. Louis Cardinals are unbeaten after six games and lead the National League but Whitey Ford has apparently made a successful comeback and New York Yankees are leading the American League for the second time this season.

Ford, who saw little action because of injuries last season and wasn't even on the Yankee roster when the club went to

With Minnesota Twins sneaking by Baltimore Orioles, 3-2, Ford's pitching put the Yankees a half game in front with a 4-2 showing. Only Cleveland Indians, who beat Kansas City Athletics, 4-1, with three home runs, have lost fewer than three games.

The Cardinals rolled on despite a barrage of home runs by

San Francisco Giants, whose 7-5 defeat last night was their seventh in eight games.

Ken Henderson hit two home runs, Hay Alou and Willie McCovey each hit one as the Giants tried to give Juan Marichal his first victory after two losses.

But the trouble with the San Francisco home runs was that they came with the bases empty while the Cards got three runs on a homer by Tim Lincecum and two on an over-the-shoulder shot by Julian Javier.

Marichal lasted until the fourth inning, too long to avoid taking his third straight defeat.

Atlanta Braves got Jimmie Aaron's first two home runs of the season in defeating Houston Astros, 4-1, for their fifth straight win. And Los Angeles Dodgers, who lost their first four games, downed Cincinnati Reds, 3-2, when Ron Hunt made his fourth hit a 10th-inning double.

LEEDS (CP) — The English League Soccer team Leeds United gained a place in the Inter-Cities Fairs Cup semi-finals Wednesday night on the basis of a coin.

It beat Bologna, Italy, 1-0 in their quarter-final, second-leg game, making the total for the two-game series 1-1.

LONDON (AP) — Liverpool, reigning English soccer champions, cancelled plans today for an exhibition game in San Francisco May 17.

A Liverpool spokesman said the team cannot make the trip because of outstanding English League games.

SOFT, Bulgaria (AP) — Glasgow Rangers of Scotland defeated Shkvia of Sofia, 1-0, today in their first match of the semi-finals round in the European Soccer cup winners tournament.

MILAN (Reuters) — Internazionale Milan and CSKA Sofia, Bulgaria, drew 1-1 in the first game of their European Cup semi-final soccer series Wednesday night.

The Yankees, who will have to rely mostly on pitching if they are to make any appreciable jump from last season's last place, managed to give Ford an early three-run lead with their top-gun attack. And that's the way it ended.

As Le Mans Looms

By MAXWELL BOYD

LONDON — Two Ferrari-Ford skirmishes during the past few weeks were curtainraisers to a big showdown in the Le Mans 24-hour race on June 10, with an Indo-American contest that is likely to be the most bitter and hardest fought motor-racing duel since Mercedes met Jaguar at Le Mans more than 10 years ago.

Ford wiped the floor with Ferrari at Le Mans last year after the Italians' six-year monopoly of wins. Then Ferrari had their revenge at Daytona in February when the new P4 cars finished 1-2-3 and all the Ford broke down. Ford then won the Sebring 12-hour a couple of weeks ago with their new Mark 4 car, but without Ferrari opposition. Finally, both sides flexed their muscles at each other in the early practice for Le Mans last weekend.

BOTH VERY FAST

The two days of practice proved one thing: that both cars are frighteningly fast. The Ferrari was quickest round the circuit, the Ford fastest in a straight line. By Saturday afternoon, Bandini's P4 had carved five seconds off last year's record, raising the lap speed to 165.5 m.p.h. Meanwhile, the fastest Ford had chalked up about 225 m.p.h. on the same straight.

By Saturday evening, Bruce McLaren, last year's winner, spoke so casually about doing such speeds that you'd think he was driving down to the shops.

CAN'T BE UNDERESTIMED

Ford was there with the full circus — some 50 people falling over each other in the pits, of whom only about 10 seemed to have a job to do. Ferrari, on the other hand, operated with usual spartan economy. Their new team manager, Franco Lini, worked the shopwatches, backed by his chief engineer and a handful of mechanics.

But the Ford cannot be underestimated just because of their typically American approach. They won last year because their cars held together for 24 hours.

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Course Day of Cleveland, Tenn., swept four holes in a row, two with birdies, starting at the eighth hole for a 3 and 2 upset victory over medalist Mrs. Marlene Stewart Strait of Toronto in the second round of the North-South women's amateur golf tournament today.

Miss Day was two over par as she beat the Canadian golfer to advance to this afternoon's third round.

Mrs. Strait struggled to an uphill 1-up victory over a three-handicap player, Mrs. David Chaffee of Rumford, R.I., in the first round Tuesday.

The game was played to decide third and fourth positions in league standings — and the question of who plays whom in the semi-finals this weekend. The two teams had tied for third place in regular league play.

Centremen Could Decide Who Grabs Stanley Cup

MONTREAL — It will be Toronto brown and savvy against Montreal speed and elan in the Stanley Cup final but the series, which opens here tonight, could well be decided by the starting six centre-men.

Strength down the middle is what normally wins in any team sport, and this is particularly true in hockey. And that brings up interesting speculation about the respective merits of the opposing centre trios.

Montreal Canadiens are generally considered to have the best set of pivots in Jean Beliveau, Henri Richard and Ralph Backstrom but Toronto's set of Dave Keon, Wally Stemkowski and Red Kelly have won a lot of support after their effort against Chicago Black Hawks in the final.

REAY A SUPPORTER

Among their supporters is Billy Reay, Chicago coach. "They outplayed us at centre, that was the difference," Reay summed up after his club was eliminated in the sixth game of its semi-final.

If there is one thing about the Toronto centre men that is unique it is their different but effective styles.

The 27-year-old Keon, probably his club's best skater, is a standout checker who almost always will take his man out of the play.

"Davey," says Brian Conacher, "really forechecks the other team into mistakes."

KELLY AMONG BEST

Although a constant fore-checker, Kelly doesn't resemble Keon in any manner. He has great control of the puck with his skates and being a converted defenceman, continually drops back to help out the defence.

"He has to be one of the best centre men in the league," says Punch Imlach, his admiring coach. "What he lacks in speed he more than makes up with brains."

Stemkowski, a sophomore who seemed to find himself late in the season and was a standout in the semi-final against Chicago, is a big, tough-hitting forward.

HITTING PAYS OFF

"If figure I go out against a good centre and I hit him a few times he starts looking at me and forgetting about the puck," is the way Stemkowski explains his approach to the art of playing centre.

"He's the guy who made me go," says winger Jim Pappin. "I was sent to Rochester of the American Hockey League during the season, then came back to have a 21-goal season playing on Stemkowski's line."

Backing up their three starters the Leafs have Mike Walton, a shifty, fast-moving winger who can do a good fill-in job on any line.

TWO OF GREATEST

However, Canadians have two of hockey's all-time greats in Beliveau and Richard and in Backstrom who hit his best form late in the season and in the semi-finals against New York Rangers.

Beliveau, hampered early in the season by an injured thumb and then hit back later by an accident which almost cost him the sight in one eye, played in only 33 games and his production of 12 goals and 28 assists was his lowest since he broke into the National Hockey League in 1961.

However, like the rest of his club, Beliveau came on late in the season and was again Canadiens' top leader in the semi-finals.

MOST EFFECTIVE

Richard also got away slowly this season but the rugged little veteran was the most effective centreman in the league at the end of the season.

Off what has happened, it all adds up to what appears to be an even match-up. Over the season, Toronto centre men combined for 46 goals and 79 assists to 47 goals and 57 assists for the Montreal trio. And making it more even, all six reached top form late in the season.

There was also little to choose between the two clubs. Leafs outscored Canadiens, 204-202, in the 70-game schedule but the Canadiens had a good bulge defensively, allowing only 188 goals to 211 for the Leafs.

EQUALIZING FACTOR

Here again, however, there is an equalizing factor in that Johnny Bower and Terry Sawchuk were injured and only played 27 and 28 games, respectively.

Both veterans are now healthy and the Leafs feel they have an edge in goal, where the Canadiens have been relying on rookie Rogatien Vachon. Bower and Sawchuk, the Leafs point out, are proven money performers.

On the other hand, Vachon

has been little short of spectacular since stealing the first-string job after being called up from the Central League to fill in because of injuries.

KEY MAN

In 19 league games, the 21-year-old youngster had a sparkling 2.48 goals-against average and he held the Rangers to eight goals in four games, after yielding four in the first game. And it was after Vachon was put in the nets that the Canadiens started the drive which put them in second place.

Canadiens start the series unbeaten in their last 15 games and with a 10-game win streak. Their last defeat came on March 8 and was, perhaps significantly, inflicted by the Leafs.

Although the Leafs lost winger Larry Jeffery for the series in Tuesday's game against Chicago, they will enter the series surprisingly well off physically in view of the ruggedness of their semi-final. Jeffery tore knee ligaments while bouncing Stan Mikita into the boards and was operated on yesterday. However, the rest of the Leafs have been pronounced fit with captain George Armstrong reported ready to take a regular turn.

Canadiens, who have rested since last Thursday and have all their old confidence back, are as healthy as a club can be at this stage of the season.

'Ranting' Hit

Union Shots Crack Pact

NANAIMO — Another crack appeared in the troubled alliance between Pulp-Sulphite and IWA, as an official of the International pulp union blasted back at an IWA official.

Since the alliance at Gold River was announced, many IWA locals have bitterly attacked the proposed merger.

For the first time, a spokesman for the troubled Pulp-Sulphite Union has returned the fire.

"I am fed up with the ranting and raving of Syd Thompson" (president of Vancouver IWA local) said Ken Warde, president of Pulp-Sulphite's Nanaimo local.

Suspensions Sane?

Mr. Thompson earlier called in question the sanity of a move by Pulp-Sulphite at Nanaimo to demand the court require MacMillan Bloedel to suspend more than 800 men.

The 800 are members of Local 8, of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

He also hit the Gold River alliance, and blasted IWA official Jack Moore for engineering the pact.

Mr. Warde said "When he (Thompson) is not attacking Jack Moore or some IWA local, he is attacking other trade unionists or other unions."

"In fact, he spends far more time attacking labor than criticizing management. He has now placed himself on the side of the Talmis Company and MacMillan Bloedel."

Mr. Warde said, "It is about time he started to mind his own business and kept his nose out of our local union affairs."

He added, "We have full local union autonomy, and we intend to keep it that way, no matter how Thompson bellows."

Officials of the British Columbia Federation of Labor met for the second straight day today with officers of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

Spokesman for both organizations declined to say what was being discussed but it was reported the federation was seeking to persuade the International to drop its court demand for suspension of 800 workers.

The International is to return to B.C. Supreme Court Thursday to ask for an order forcing the company to suspend the 800 men for failing to maintain membership in the International union.

Braaten Makes Bid

The International said it is going to court to legally test its union shop clause in the MacMillan Bloedel contract.

Meanwhile, the president of the Canadian union, Orville Braaten, said his group is prepared to withdraw its court action over the situation at the mill if the International union will guarantee a secret representation ballot for the workers.

He was replying in Nanaimo to a request by the Vancouver Labor Council that the jurisdictional dispute be withdrawn from the courts.

The Vancouver Labor Council Tuesday night said the dispute should be withdrawn from the courts because it could do harm to the entire labor movement.

"Our labor council calls on the B.C. Federation of Labor to do everything that is humanly possible to handle the situation in such a way that the issue will be withdrawn from the courts," said Charles Stewart of the Transit Union.

Meanwhile, in yet another action, the Harman employees Benevolent Society denied it was formed as a "team" to take $40,000 in assets from the International to turn over to Local 8.

The International is suing the society for a declaration that it is the rightful owner of the assets.

The Labor Relations Board has been besieged by applications for certification at the new Talmis Co. pulp mill in Gold River, causing an indefinite postponement in the hearing date.

Gold River Later

The hearing slated for Tuesday, the second scheduled date for hearing, had to be postponed after the LRB received additional applications Monday, bringing the total number of applications before the board to five.

A spokesman for the board said the applications will have to be thoroughly checked out, making it impossible to say when it will be possible to schedule another hearing.

The original applications, two in number, were from the International Woodworkers of America, an application for a variance from its present with the Talmis Co., and an application from the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

The latest applications are: one from the IWA asking for a new certification to cover the Gold River mill; one from the International Union of Pulp, Sulphite Workers, and a multi-union application from the IWA and Pulp, Sulphite.

Strange Noise Baffles

DUNCAN — Who is behind the peeping beeper which scammed parts of the Cowichan Valley recently?

Its nightly sound baffles some people who heard it.

Is it an owl or something more unusual?

"It was quite a beeping noise. We could hear it distinctly," said Chris and Mark, 15-year-old twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Dochtermann of Lake Cowichan Road.

Beeps

The source transmitted a precise number of beeping sounds per second and the Dochtermanns disagree with the police officers who came to investigate, and said it was an owl.

Their doubts about the official decision became even greater when the boys' father picked up the same beep on the carrier wave of his short wave ham operator set.

Clues

Local UFO expert Vern Stanley-Jones was asked by the Dochtermanns to head a group of young people who searched the area hoping to pick up a clue.

Nothing was found and Mr. Stanley-Jones is convinced the signals had been transmitted by an electronic device.

"Otherwise it never could have been picked up on the carrier wave."

Drift

The Dochtermann incident was nothing new for him, because shortly before he heard the beep beep sound outside his Richards Trail home.

"It was very distinct, but before I could get my tape recorder set up it drifted down Richards Trail."

Tape

"At first I did not know what to make of it."

"Where had I heard that sound before?"

"And then I remembered the tape from the Hollyburn incident last June."

During the Hollyburn Mountain, Vancouver, event, game officials and UFO fans and experts followed the beeping sound.

Shots

Shots from a .308 rifle made the beep tone faster, as if an electronic system had been disturbed, and then the signals fell back to the same rhythm.

The official verdict again was — an owl.

But that time the curator of the Vancouver Zoo said the particular owl did not live in the area at all.

He said three people in the Chemainus and Crofton areas also heard the sound recently.

Hero Who Saved Eight from Crash
'Had No Friends' When on Bench

NANAIMO—When his friend the mayor appeared before him on a speeding charge, Lionel Beevor-Potts commented, "A magistrate on the bench has no friends," and promptly fined the civic dignitary for his offence.

"He's strict but he's fair," said then-mayor George Muir of Nanaimo, after he dug deep and paid the fine.

The strict-but-fair man carried on a tradition of law founded by his father in 1915.

When a 23-year-old married man was convicted on four burglary charges, an RCMP prosecutor asked for a stiff sentence for the man.

But when the prisoner told the magistrate he had "learned his lesson," Mr. Beevor-Potts gave him a suspended sentence.

The shocked prosecutor argued vigorously, but the magistrate remained unmoved, and the young man went home to his family.

Mr. Beevor-Potts was born in Nanaimo May 31, 1894. He was educated in Nanaimo schools and at University School, Victoria.

He was studying law with his father when the war broke out in 1914. He went to Sandhurst, was granted a commission in South Wales Borderers, and went to France in 1915.

He was awarded the Military Cross and was mentioned in dispatches, before being invalided to England.

and after a bit of string-pulling he was soon back in action, flying over the front lines against the Turks, earning his observer's wings.

He continued flying after the war ended, with the army of occupation of Cologne.

He went to India with the South Wales Borderers, but he didn't like the life much.

"India was a fine place if you had lots of money. I hadn't."

1939, when he joined Canadian Scottish and became officer commanding of "A" Company, until the air force accepted him in 1941.

He was awarded the MBE for leading a rescue party that hauled eight men from flaming wreckage of a crashed transport plane at Port Hardy.

He succeeded his father as magistrate in 1945.

Mr. Beevor-Potts was a trout fisherman and a keen gardener.

Board Shocked by Long Lines at Nanaimo

Ten-Minute Lunch for Students

NANAIMO — Many junior high school students are only getting a 10-minute lunch break. This was the information given to the school board Wednesday night by cafeteria chairman Doris Menard in her report.

Students at John Baraby junior high school go to lunch in two shifts during the lunch hour.

To facilitate serving, some students help in the kitchen but this still results in a long lineup, she said.

AGREEMENT

There is a two-shift arrangement whereby Grade 8 have the first half-hour and Grade 9 and 10s have the following half-hour.

The lineups remain with students returning to their tables with only 10 minutes to eat.

Some students have started to bring their own lunch.

Others have requested permission to go home for lunch or to leave the grounds to eat elsewhere.

One student apparently doesn't bother — he was seen eating his lunch on the way home after school.

ALL SHOCKED

All members of the board were shocked at the information.

"These kids have got to have sufficient time to eat their lunch," said Dr. Roy McMillan.

The board passed the motion for the cafeteria chairman to further investigate the situation and the introduction of a two-hour lunch break.

Woodside junior high school has this arrangement and the board was told the students are funnelled through on a three-shift basis, giving 40 minutes instead of 30 for serving and eating.

There is no possibility of splitting the lineup at John Baraby School.

School superintendent, Harley Abbott, said, "We can make more use of activity rooms," in connection with a recommendation by physical education supervisor Bruce Wallace.

Mr. Wallace suggested that referendums be held to provide more of the rooms, "because more than half of the schools are without them and of the school with them, four could be doubled in space."

"As time goes by we're getting shorter and shorter of activity rooms," he added.

He suggested the board seriously consider Mr. Wallace's proposal.

Another proposal by Mr. Wallace was accepted.

It calls for $1,000 to be set aside for an aquatic program. Mr. Wallace suggested that Grade 2 and 3 pupils be started in the program to acquire basic skills and fundamental knowledge of the water.

Two Men Spotted 'Fleeing Hotel'

CUMBERLAND — Officials are investigating a report that two young men were seen running from the Waverly Hotel, as fire broke out at the historic building.

Reports indicated one young man ran from the front of the hotel, another from the back.

Fire appeared to break out at the same time at front and back of the building.

The blaze left the Waverly a water-soaked, black ruin. The fire broke out at 2 a.m. Wednesday.

The Waverly was on Dunsmuir, near the corner of First Street.

It was owned by Claude Jordan.

Since taking over the ownership, Mr. Jordan had spent a considerable sum on renovations and general clean-up of the premises and its surrounding area.

The hotel is believed to have been built in the late 1890s and is the third hotel to burn in 17 years. The first to go was the Union, owned by Canadian Collieries Dunsmuir Ltd., also used as a boarding home, and more recently the Victory.

All residents left the Waverly safely, but one unidentified man had to be brought down from the second floor by firemen using a ladder.

Dense smoke hampered firemen in efforts to quell the blaze. At times road at the side and back of the building were

Kyuquot Mail Will Come Through Sky

KYUQUOT — The mails must get through, and starting May 1, they will be getting through on time.

All mail to this village will be brought in by an air service of B.C. Airlines out of Campbell River.

This will replace the present service of first class mail being brought in by air, and all other mail coming in on the weekly boat service.

The new system will operate Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

While this will mean greatly improved service, it may also mean some first class mail will be slightly slower than when it came straight from Vancouver.

Residents believe the loss of the mail contract by the water travel firm means it is less likely than ever that the wharf, built mainly for use by the ship, will ever be used.

City Hunts for Cash

Crystal Garden Revamping $15,000 Short

By A. H. MURPHY

Victoria, already facing the highest tax rate in its history, will be looking for another $15,000 from the 1967 budget as the result of a low estimate on a rehabilitation job at the Crystal Garden, officials said Tuesday.

Members of the city council recreation committee were told at a special meeting Monday that a new heating and ventilation system for the swimming pool-bathroom facility would cost closer to $70,000 than the originally estimated $55,000.

The city treasurer was instructed to make the extra amount available in the 1967 budget. Spending estimates in relation to the massive more-than-$15,000,000 budget will, for the second time, come under aldermanic scrutiny next week.

The original estimate was made following a report made to the committee by F. T. Gardiner, consulting engineer. Mr. Gardiner was present at Monday's meeting.

Ald. Hugh Ramsay, committee chairman, said he was not present at the meeting Monday, which was conducted by Ald. Cecil Parrott, but that he was disturbed to find that the original estimate was not correct.

"I intend to call a meeting at which the city engineer, the consulting engineer and the contractor will be present and try to find some answers to this question, as I'm sure they will be asked in city council," said Ald. Ramsay.

HIGHLY COMPLEX
The contract for the plumbing and heating job was awarded to the firm of M. Griffin Ltd. at Tuesday's meeting. It was for $42,716.

Officials at City Hall emphasized that the whole renewal job at the Crystal Garden was highly complex. Part of the difference between the contract price and the $70,000 was accounted for by the fact that many of the big items to be used in the job — boilers, fans, heat exchangers and heat coils — were purchased by the city earlier because of the fact that they wanted to have the material on hand when the decision was made to go ahead with the job.

The successful contractor, in addition to doing the installation work, will provide such items as pumps, ducts and valves.

FIRST PHASE
It was also emphasized Tuesday that while the $70,000 figure included some work on the second phase of the renovation job.

It was the case, the alderman said, it would bring the $70,000 figure into more accurate perspective, and justify the $15,000 difference.

Only Eight Added—Not 78

Saanich Wiends Firemen's Axe

By JOHN MATTERS

Saanich's fire committee Tuesday night suggested eight new firemen be hired this year.

Safe Blowers Take Powder

BURNABY (CP) — A routine night patrol by a private security agency frightened off safe-crackers who were attempting to break into the vault of a bank early Sunday. The intruders fled just before trying to blow the vault.

Sechelt RCMP Baffled by Body

SECHELT (CP) — An unidentified body found in the water near Trial Island will be sent to Vancouver for autopsy, RCMP say.

A spokesman said it has not been determined if the body was that of a man or a woman owing to its decomposed state.

The recommendation came as council seemed determined to keep all municipal costs to a minimum this year.

Last year, a study of the Saanich fire department by the provincial fire marshal's office suggested 78 men be added to the staff.

WHITTLED AGAIN
Fire Chief J. S. Sutherland subsequently recommended hiring 24. Then Coun. Alan Newberry, chairman of the fire committee, suggested 12.

On Tuesday night, it was whittled down to eight.

"We had to compromise," said Coun. Newberry. "We have to keep the taxes down."

Fire Chief Sutherland told the committee that the extra eight men would still leave Saanich with a skeleton staff when it responded to a fire.

The staffing situation would be worse if an ambulance call, requiring two men, came in when there was a crew at a fire.

"The chief has presented a good case for a hefty increase but I am not prepared to go over eight," said Reeve Hugh Curtis.

MORE NEXT YEAR?
He pointed out that the budget has been carefully prepared by municipal staff and there is little opportunity for council to trim it.

"I think next year's council can consider adding a similar number of men but anything more than eight this year would be a load."

The addition of 24 men to the present staff of 56 would have been an additional expenditure of $150,000.

For comparison purposes, the city of Victoria has a total of 105 men on its fire department, including the chief and deputy chief.

Glasses Empty

If Saanich had its way, golfers from all over Canada will be holding empty glasses at a reception for them here this summer.

Council Tuesday night decided it won't share in the $750 cost of a reception for the Royal Canadian Golf Association Aug. 8 to 12.

The only dissenting voice was that of Coun. Digby Kier, who argued that a reception for golfers will be as valuable for tourism as was a travel agents' reception in which Saanich participated earlier.

However, council decided to participate in a reception for the Public Personnel Management Association here this summer.

Saanich Chief Tells of Child Problem:

Scouts, Guides Won't Help

Boy Scouts, Girl Guides and like groups refuse to help the problem child who is referred to them by police or social workers, Saanich Police Chief W. A. Pearson said Tuesday.

"They turn their backs on any child a social worker or police officer takes to them," he said.

Saanich Council Nervous, Subdued

Saanich councillors came out of a 50-minute closed meeting Tuesday night nervous and subdued.

Councillors seemed to have trouble keeping their minds on the work which faced them at a subsequent group committee meeting.

Reeve Hugh Curtis, asked later what was discussed behind doors, said:

"Much of our committee discussion involved a very thorny single property easement battle and an untidy single property in the western section of the municipality."

All members of council except Coun. Harold Todd were present.

Also there were comptroller-treasurer John Tribe, clerk Gordon Hayward, engineer Neville Lide and municipal planner Tom Loney.

Council met in an open session at 7:30 p.m. and, after adjudging several items left over from Monday night's long meeting, went behind closed doors at 8:10 p.m.

That meeting adjourned at 9 p.m. then council went into a committee room for finance, legislative, commerce, fire, recreation and health and welfare matters.

Local doorknob-fancier reported old iron doorknob on Duncan Building in Bastion Square, had been replaced by smooth brass one, below. But architect Alan Lester said change was only temporary because old hardware was badly rusted. He guaranteed a "decent, old-fashioned knob" will be found, in keeping with motif of the building, which is being renovated by Farmer Construction Ltd.—(Jim Ryan) because the child needs help," he told an institute on family and children's services during a Welfare League of America conference at the legislative buildings. (See also Page 32.)

About 35 per cent of B.C. social workers leave their jobs every year, he said, claiming they do so because many of the facilities in the

"We are no longer 'the fuzz' to them, but police officers whom they know and respect."

"This is the reason we took our safety program into the schools, so the children would get to know our policemen, and they would get to know the children."

Delegate Donald Beddows of Smithers advocated challenging courses along the lines of the English Outward Bound programs.

"Some boys are just not interested in Scouting and the like," he said. "Today we call delinquents the boys who would have been heroes in wartime."

He said youngsters who needed to have their energy channelled would be the leaders of tomorrow, but were today's delinquents simply because they didn't conform.

Bristol Britannia similar to crashed Swiss airliner

Six in Airliner Survive

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — An airliner chartered by a Swiss travel agency crashed and exploded in flames early today during a thunderstorm on this Mediterranean island. Authorities said 124 persons were killed.

Officials said there were six survivors, including a stewardess. All were severely injured. The plane was returning to Zurich from an economy vacation trip to Asia. It carried 120 Swiss and German tourists and 10 crew members.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING
Airport officials quoted the pilot of the four-engine Bristol Britannia turbo-prop, a British-built plane, as saying it was struck by lightning as he approached Nicosia airport in darkness.

The pilot was instructed to make an emergency landing at a nearby airstrip, but the plane crashed into the side of a hill and exploded. Heavy rain and hail pelted the disaster area.

FAR-EASTERN TRIP
The plane was owned by Globe Air Co., a Zurich firm, and chartered by Hotelplan, a Swiss travel agency. It was returning to Zurich from a trip to Bangkok, Thailand, via Colombo and Bombay.

The plane had been scheduled to stop in Cairo for refuelling, but it was diverted to Nicosia because of bad weather in the Egyptian capital.

SURVIVORS AIRLIFTED
Bits of wreckage and bodies were scattered over a wide area and rescue operations for the survivors were hampered by the rain and hail. The survivors were airlifted by helicopter to a hospital manned by the United Nations peacekeeping force on this troubled island, torn by strife between Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

Civil aviation officials sealed off the area and launched an investigation into the crash. A delegation of Swiss federal air force representatives and officials of Globe Air Co. left.

Shovelling Soon

Surveyor Snapping

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor III, packing a tiny shovel to scoop moon dust, settled softly on a broad lunar plain Wednesday and began televising pictures of a possible astronaut landing site.

The first photos, sent to earth after the landing in the dry Ocean of Storms, were of the spidery spacecraft itself. They showed it apparently in good condition.

Surveyor III, braking on tongues of fire, planted its three legs on the moon's surface at 4:04 p.m. PST after a 65-hour, 217,000-mile flight from Cape Kennedy.

It was expected to return hundreds of photos of terrain, then begin soil analyses with a toy-like shovel at the end of a spindly arm.

It appears on the way to duplicating the success of Surveyor I, which made the first U.S. soft moon-landing last June and returned thousands of pictures.

The first pictures from Surveyor III had 200 scan lines — giving about one-third the detail of a home TV set. Scheduled later were shots with 600 lines, yielding home-like quality.

Early shots were indistinct.

A laboratory spokesman said scientists were not particularly concerned, noting initial pictures for Surveyor I were unclear.

Scientists banked on teamwork between Surveyor III's shovel and camera to return the most detailed information yet on the strength and texture of the lunar surface.

Fire Loss $750,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — A three-alarm fire that caused damage estimated at up to $750,000 Wednesday night severely damaged two buildings in the East End industrial area, owned by commercial saw and lamp companies. No one was hurt.

Air War Multiplies

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. air force jets battled swarms of Communist MIG interceptors in 17 separate encounters Wednesday and fought their way through to bomb targets south-east of the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi, the U.S. command reported today. At least one MIG was shot down. There were no reports of U.S. planes being hit. The raids 37 miles southeast of Hanoi followed heavy strikes against North Vietnam Tuesday in which U.S. pilots flew 145 missions, the second biggest aerial assault of the year.

Taking advantage of a break in the monsoon weather that has blanketed most of North Vietnam since last November, F105 Thunderchief jets knifed deep into Communist territory to raid a key power transmission station 44 miles northeast of the port of Haiphong.

The Communists sent up swarms of Russian-made MIG 17 jets to meet them.

Superior F4C Phantom jets flew cover for the Thunderchief pilots in the strikes against North Vietnam's industrial heartland.

The U.S. command said the pilot of a Thunderchief was credited with shooting one of the MIGs out of the sky. It was the 39th MIG to fall to U.S. guns since the air war began more than two years ago.

Buttle Dispute Settled — Tentatively

By BILL STAVDAL
Legislative Reporter

The Buttle Lake-Western Mines pollution dispute reached a tentative settlement Wednesday after a three-hour meeting in Victoria.

Three provincial cabinet ministers, mine officials and civic officials from Campbell River agreed to submit the issue to an independent survey and leave the final solution to the Pollution Control Board.

A public hearing will be held by the Pollution Control Board after receipt of a study by Dr. George Langford of Toronto, according to the tentative agreement.

DEADLINE SET
The draft agreement must be ratified by 5 p.m. Friday by directors of Western Mines and by the Campbell River water board.

The issue concerns dumping of mine tailings into Myra Creek and the head of Buttle Lake, from which Campbell River draws its water.

The B.C. Appeal Court revoked Western Mines' permit to dump tailings on grounds that no public hearing on the matter had been held by the Pollution Control Board.

TEMPORARY BASIS
The mine has had its permits restored on a temporary basis, and until this week was preparing to take its case before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Wednesday's meeting in the legislative buildings was attended by Resources Minister Williston, Conservation Minister Kiernan and Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell, who is also a member for Comox riding.

From Campbell River came Reeve Kenneth McDonald; Stanley Jenson, chairman of the Campbell River water board; and

Says Caouette

Closure Support Certain

OTTAWA (CP) — Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said Wednesday his party will support government-imposed closure to shut up the Conservatives on the armed forces unification bill.

He said in the Commons the unification debate is sickening Canadians and the Conservatives are preventing the bill from coming to a vote.

Mr. Caouette spoke during the 13th consecutive day of the debate, which is scheduled to be completed Tuesday night under government application of the provisional guillotine rule, a form of closure.

Today the Commons will debate a government motion — discussion is limited to one sitting — to cut the debate Tuesday.

Mr. Caouette's statement removed all doubt, if there had been any, that the motion will be passed.

Sargent's Priority:

Public Order — Then Rights

VANCOUVER (CP) — Retired judge R. A. Sargent, heading a provincial royal commission on invasion of privacy, says society must relinquish some of its rights so citizens may live in well-ordered fashion.

The commissioner was commenting during discussion with a civil rights lawyer at Tuesday's hearing on whether police should be allowed to eavesdrop, electrically or otherwise.

Mr. Sargent suggested the absolute ban on bugging suggested in a brief by the B.C. Civil Liberties Association would hinder police in their fight against crime.

A proposal by the association that the term bugging be extended to cover someone hiding in a room to overhear a conversation would "very materially" help organized crime.

Church Weighs Common Law

200,000 Blessings?

HAMILTON (CP) — The United Church of Canada is considering special church services to give blessings to some of Canada's 200,000 common law marriages, a Hamilton minister said Tuesday.

Rev. H. N. Hillyer, spokesman for a group of Hamilton ministers working toward the change, said a morally-sound common law union is acceptable to God and should be publicly blessed by the church.

The division of congregational life and work of the United Church soon will study the feasibility of services that would provide church blessings on such relationships.

Mr. Hillyer, chairman of the committee of evangelism and social service at the Hamilton presbytery, said a formal service, "something like the blessing bestowed on other married couples," could remove the guilt feelings that often surround some morally-good marriages and prevent some people from being alienated from the church.

Common law couples usually are refused the sacraments, including baptism of children, Mr. Hillyer said.

Running Block

Traditionally all-male Boston marathon race of 26 miles was invaded Wednesday by girl identified only as K. Switzer of Syracuse.
